Troops Observe Easter In Viet

SAIGON (AP)—American and other allied forces conducted Easter sunrise services in South Vietnam on Sunday and U.S. warplanes struck again at North Vietnam's big steel plant near Hanoi.

Headquarters announced that all-weather A6 Intruders from the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise hammered the Thai Nguyen steel fabrication plant 35 miles north of Hanoi on Saturday night and that "pilots reported the mission successful."

In South Vietnam, the U.S. Military Command reported that a heavily outnumbered company of Vietnamese civilian irregulars and their American Special Forces—Green Beret—advisers successfully fought their way out of a Viet Cong encirclement close to Cambodia.

The company—about 120 men—killed 73 of the enemy while taking light casualties themselves, the U.S. Command said in a delayed report.

Headquarters said the civilian irregulars made a helicopter assault Friday afternoon into a landing zone 19 miles northwest of Phuoc Binh near the Cambodian frontier. They immediately made contact with two enemy reinforced battalions, perhaps 1,000 men, the U.S. Command said.

Up and down South Vietnam, Easter religious services were conducted by military chaplains for American and other allied forces where battle conditions permitted.

Among the sunrise services was one conducted on "Monkey Mountain" overlooking Da Nang for U.S. Marines, Air Force and Navy personnel. This service was televised by the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, made a quick trip to the Philippines to spend Easter Sunday, his 53rd birthday, with his wife. The four-star commander is expected back in the war zone Monday or Tuesday.

U.S. officers said no special Easter menus were planned for the men in the field, but some ingenious mess sergeants managed to provide colored Easter eggs for some units.

In the darkness before the Easter sunrise services, B52 bombers flew in from Guam to pound enemy installations in War Zone C near Cambodia in support of American troops in Operation Junction City.

A series of bloody actions in the northern sector of South Vietnam were reported Saturday.

The U.S. command said Marines, bombers and field guns killed 146 North Vietnamese regulars over a 48-hour period in fights that centered largely around Con Thien mountain, three miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The Marines, harassed by fire from enemy mortars within the zone while fighting dug-in troops close at hand, reported 24 of their own men were killed and 140 wounded.

Con Thien mountain is just a hill by ordinary standards. It rises only 514 feet. But it is strategically located between two of the 175mm artillery emplacements by which American gunners hurl 6.8-inch, 150-pound shells at Communist targets in North Vietnam. As such, it would be valuable to the enemy as an observation post.

The Communists struck heavily at two truck convoys south of Da Nang Friday night. Enemy road mines ripped into a line of U.S. Marine vehicles, killing three Marines and wounding 10. Three trucks burned.

Communists ambushed a government convoy of 121 trucks returning empty to Da Nang after delivering a battalion of Vietnamese troops to Quang Ngai, 80 miles down the coast. Sketched accounts from the scene said they inflicted heavy casualties on the escort and damaged 82 of the trucks, 57 beyond repair.

Curtailing of North Vietnam's electric power supply remained an obvious objective of the air campaign above the border.

Two college presidents were among eight top American educators killed when their transport plane crashed into a mountain near Da Nang, South Vietnam while on a study trip. Dr. Harry F. Bangsberg, left, 39, was president of Bemidji (Minn.) State College and James Albertson, 41, headed Wisconsin State University at Stevens Point.

Fort Lauderdale Rioting Flares

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—An angry mob of reveling college students touched off another riot Saturday, deluging club-swinging police with beer cans and foul language.

The brawl began on a street corner near the beach when officers asked a group of students to quit blanket tossing the curvy, bikini-clad coeds.

Resentful and bored, the students immediately began insulting the helmeted policemen. Then came the beer cans and the officers beat a hasty retreat.

But they were back immediately with reinforcements. The riot squads marched through the chanting crowd and dispersed the students within 30 minutes.

Disorderly conduct charges were leveled against 50 students, increasing the number of arrests to 250 in the past two days. No serious injuries were reported.

The sunburned youths, letting down their bleached hair after a long, hard, winter up north had wandered off the beach onto the adjoining street. They congregated at a corner where a group of boys were climbing the slanting palms while the girls cheered them on with shouts of "Monkey! Monkey!"

Police tactfully looked the other way as the students shined up and down the trees. But they moved in when groups of boys in the background began tossing the lithe coeds into the air with blankets. Both the boys and girls jeered and cursed the police, whose tempers were getting shorter by the minute.

The beer can barrage did little to lighten the mood and the riot squads soon had put down the disturbance.

A stream of curses filled the sunlit lotion-scented air as the students grudgingly gave way. Those arrested were hauled away in paddy wagons. Many were singled out by young plainclothes policemen who were mingling with the crowd.

They were booked at the city jail and waited for another 100 contemporaries for their moment in court. A special hearing which began early in the day had handled about 100 cases by 6 p.m. and Municipal Judge Stephen Booher vowed he would stay on the bench until midnight if necessary.

About 70 per cent of the first 100 students were given sentences ranging from one to five days and were fined from $25 to $75 and one student had to pay a fine of $100.

More than 200 policemen watched the beach areas as darkness fell. More than 20,000 students were in the city at dusk and more were pouring in from neighboring Miami.

Saturday's outburst was shorter and less violent than the Good Friday rampage in which

Thousands Attend Holy City Services

JERUSALEM (AP)—Thousands of Christian pilgrims from all over the world flocked into this Holy City Saturday to celebrate Easter and the supreme event of their faith—the resurrection of Christ.

Dark thunderheads hung in the sky and heavy rain fell on the devout as they retraced the last steps of Jesus along the Via Dolorosa to Calvary, visited other holy places and awaited Easter services in the cavernous old Church of the Holy Sepulchre, which marks the spot where many believe Christ was buried.

In addition to the Pontifical Masses of the Roman Catholics, special Easter services were planned by other denominations, including an Easter sunrise service by the German Lutheran Church at the garden tomb, said by others to be Christ's burial place.

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The bells of Rome's 400 churches boomed a message of rejoicing through this ancient city early this Easter Sunday morning to recall Christ's resurrection.

The 10-ton master bell of St. Peter's Basilica, first to begin pealing, sounded as tens of thousands prepared to flock to Roman Catholic churches for midnight masses.

A few hours earlier in St. Peter's, Pope Paul attended Holy Saturday services that ended the penitential season of Lent and led the world's half-billion Roman Catholics into the major feast day of Easter.

Holy Saturday began with the "Blessing of the Fire" rite in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. As bells pealed, Roman Catholic Bishop Jacob Beltritti lit a candle at Christ's tomb to symbolize His resurrection.

Unlike the near-riot that erupted a year ago, when thousands of persons jammed into the church, this year's ceremony was quiet and solemn.

As Christians observed the Easter holidays, Jews were celebrating the "Purim feast" in religious services that recalled their delivery from the Persians 2,500 years ago.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—The skipper of a Soviet shrimp trawler was found guilty Saturday of violating U.S. fishing waters and fined $10,000.

U.S. Dist. Judge James von der Noydt found Leonid Kushchenko guilty after the Russian had entered a plea of no contest and remanded him to custody of U.S. Marshal George Bayer.

Unless the fine is paid immediately Kushchenko was expected to spend the night in the Alaska State Jail here.

The maximum penalty for the offense—violation of the newly established 12-mile exclusive U.S. fisheries zone—was a $10,000 fine, one year in jail and confiscation of the Soviet vessel and its cargo.

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The Indian health ministry said Saturday night that nearly 3,000 people have died of smallpox in India since January.

Officials expressed fears the death toll would go much higher despite a massive vaccination program.

"We have enough vaccine for everyone, but there is a lot of reluctance to the immunizations," Dr. Mahendra Singh, a director of the national smallpox eradication program, said in an interview.

"Many people in rural areas simply do not let our staff members immunize them."

This is particularly true in drought-stricken Bihar, he said, where 2,184 people have contracted the disease since January and 642 have died.

Officials of Purity Dairies, Inc., said they decided not to move any more trucks after three vehicles were met by a hail of rocks as they prepared to leave the plant Saturday morning.

The decision by the NFO to hold milk off the market had forced three other big Nashville plants to cease delivery Friday.

The crisis arose after two labor unions pulled drivers off trucks in sympathy with the NFO. Only about 1,800 gallons of milk—out of a normal daily production of about 12,000 gallons—was being processed and it was earmarked for hospitals.

In Kentucky, the NFO offered four-month milk contracts to milk companies. George Stiles, state president of the NFO said the contracts were designed to give quick benefit to farmers while allowing national NFO officials more time to negotiate a master agreement.

Stiles said the contract calls for a two-cent per quart increase. However, a spokesman for Kyana Milk Producers, Inc., which serves the Louisville-Evansville-Lexington market, said: "We're not interested—our board of directors has met with them (NFO) before and they do not intend to meet with them again."

(Turn To Page Nine)

Metropolitan police in Nashville, Tenn., accompanied trucks making deliveries of milk to the hospitals and other institutions, but no deliveries were made to grocery stores. Grocers said there would be no milk available in the city by nightfall.

The last of Nashville's four major processing plants halted operations Saturday, shutting off 85 per cent of the flow of milk into middle Tennessee.

Following the discount rate rise in December of 1965, banks raised their prime rate from 4.5 to 5 per cent. But it subsequently rose as high as 6 per cent in late summer and turned down only in recent months.

Present Federal Reserve policy calls for easier credit but it's been concentrating its efforts in other fields, especially in open-market operations and in lowering reserve requirements.

A lowering in the discount rate, however, would provide a clear signal to banks to lower their interest rates further.

He is Risen

Be not affrighted: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

Britons Fighting Battle Against Oil

LAND'S END, ENGLAND (AP)—Hundreds of British troops fought a battle of the beaches Saturday night against an oozing mass of crude oil advancing on the vacation coast of Cornwall and polluting its fishing waters.

The source of the oil, the American tanker Torrey Canyon, was stuck fast on offshore rocks, its cargo pouring into the sea. Three tugs tried to refloat the 61,263-ton giant at high tide but failed again.

The high tides that may save the tanker may be death to the beaches.

The threatened loss to the picturesque Cornish coast, which lives on fishing and tourism, was high. Hotels already have received cancellations for the summer season.

Oil slicks 18 inches thick reached the Cornish bays—too thick to break up under the strong detergent sprayed by troops on shore and trawlers off the coast.

The detergent, far stronger than household dish-washing preparations which kill fish in inland streams, could threaten microscopic marine life on which fish feed. Government officials asserted it would be too weak to menace undersea life, but some biologists and oceanographers disputed this.

Some 267,000 gallons of detergent arrived by road. Police kept Easter holiday travelers off the roads to let the trucks through. A detergent's effect is to make oil soluble in water.

The British hope the solution will be diluted by the ocean enough to make it harmless.

The British organized the fight in military style. Five hundred troops were in the front line on the beaches, 300 others waited in reserve and 1,500 were due on Monday.

Firemen and town employees stood by for beach work during the Easter holiday. Civilian volunteers were few, although farmers lent tractors and other equipment.

At the first alert Friday night, Royal Marines on leave from Plymouth were called back to base. Announcements were made in movie theaters. Some were called from Plymouth pubs and rushed by taxis direct to the shore. Infantrymen were recalled by telegram from Easter leave.

The Cornish coast may be stuck with the oil for months if high tides push it beyond the beaches on to the rocks and cliffs. Once there, it clots into masses the size of footballs and has to be picked off by hand.

Detergent sprayed on shore menaces beach life. One Welsh beach sprayed with detergent several years ago is still barren of life. It had been covered by hundreds rather than millions of gallons of oil.

Thant Sends Peace Plan To 8 Nations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. Secretary-General U Thant was reported Saturday to have given eight governments a paper proposing settlement of the war in Vietnam by simultaneously stopping military action and starting talks.

Diplomatic sources said the paper had gone to the United States, North Vietnam and South Vietnam as belligerents; Britain and the Soviet Union as co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina, and Canada, India and Poland as members of the International Control Commission policing the 1954 Geneva accords. They said the paper suggested:

—U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, all military action in South Vietnam and the sending of U.S. and North Vietnamese troops to South Vietnam should stop at once.

—At the same time, peace talks should start between the United States and North Vietnam.

—Later, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong should be brought into the talks, and after that, Britain, the Soviet Union, Canada, India, Poland and others should be added—including Communist China if it would come in.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Speculation has reached a new peak that the Federal Reserve Board is on the threshold of a dramatic easing of credit through a lowering of the discount rate.

But in its tradition, the board has refused to comment one way or another on any action it might be contemplating.

One government official said Saturday a lowering of the discount rate could come at any time but he explained this was only a guess and was not based on any inside information of board activities.

A lowering of interest rates this week by some banks on loans to their best corporate customers—the so-called prime rate—sparked new speculation in Wall Street of a possible lowering of the discount rate.

The discount rate is the charge made by the Federal Reserve for money borrowed from the system by its member banks.

Other interest rates are pegged upward from the prime and discount rates.

Some banks led by the Bank of America of San Francisco and the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York lowered their prime rate this week from 5.75 per cent to 5.5 per cent.

But this is still far above the current discount rate of 4.5 per cent.

GI HOME ON LEAVE SHOT AS PROWLER

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Robert S. Clifford Jr., 20, coming home for an unexpected leave from the Navy, was shot and killed Friday night by his father who mistook him for a prowler, police said Saturday.

The father, plant manager for a door company, told authorities there had been several prowlers recently, and he shot through the door when he heard the noise outside.

Young Clifford, a Vietnam veteran, had been stationed at the U.S. Navy base at San Diego. Officers said he was trying to enter a side door without disturbing the family.

Foundling Cries At Leaving Her 'Too Old' Foster Parents

By GEORGE ESPER
NEW YORK (AP) — One child morning six weeks ago, two social workers went to the eight-room house of Nunzio Marchese on Long Island to pick up a 4-year-old girl and return her to a foster home.

"It was 7:30 a.m.," Marchese recalls. "Nancy Anne was still sleeping. We had to awaken her."

When it came time to leave, Nancy Anne didn't want to be taken out of the house.

"She ran to my oldest daughter and held on," Marchese remembers. "She started to cry."

Marchese, 60, and his wife, Josephine, 55, had raised Nancy Anne Pagani since she was two weeks old.

"They told us we were too old, and that Nancy Anne would be placed in another foster home with younger parents," Marchese recalled in an interview today.

"I just pray to God we have the child back. We miss her dearly. There was happiness in the home, but now everything is facing the other way."

Marchese is seeking in state Supreme Court to regain Nancy Anne from the New York Foundling Hospital, which is run by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York.

The Marcheses, who live in West Hempstead, Long Island, have three children of their own, Barbara, 20, a clerical worker, and Leonard, 17, and Josephine, 15, both high school students. They also have another foster child, Belinda, 12, whom they received from the New York Foundling Hospital when she was two years old.

Marchese, who came to this country from Italy when he was three years old, has been working for the past 28 years as a cook in a Manhattan hotel. He and his wife have been married 21 years. His wife was born in Bayonne, N.J.

The Marcheses also have cared for three other foundlings entrusted to them by the hospital in past years. Two of these children were subsequently returned to their natural parents. The third, Marchese said, was a problem child and had to be returned to the foundling home.

Marchese told the court Tuesday that both he and his wife are devout Catholics, the same religion as Anne's parents.

His lawyer, Gerald Albert, said the Marcheses want to adopt Anne, and have the consent of the child's natural parents to do so. Adoption would

APPLEBEES LEAVE FOR CONFERENCE IN SOUTH AMERICA

Dr. and Mrs. Applebee leave today for Miami and Buenos Aires, Argentina to attend the fourth Inter-American Conference of Savings and Loans associations. More than 200 delegates from the United States will participate in the sessions held at the San Martin Theatre. Stanley Baruch, director of the Housing and Urban Development Department of the Agency for International Development, will address the convention at its opening session.

Among the discussion groups will be one seeking ways in which Savings and Loan Associations of the United States can assist and promote housing programs within Latin America.

The Applebees were with the South American Trade Mission that visited Brazil, Uruguay, and Argentina last year. They are interested in noting the political changes that have taken place as new presidents have been installed in both Argentina and Uruguay since their previous visit.

The local couple will visit Chile, Peru, Panama and Mexico on the way home.

No Question Who's Boss In Ferrer-Hepburn Clan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mel Ferrer, actress Audrey Hepburn's husband, is now, at least temporarily, her boss as well. The arrangement, he says, works fine: "We help and complement each other. There's no question about who's boss." Temperamentally, he said, she's actually the steadier of the two.

Religion In The News

By DENNIS F. REDMONT

FATIMA, Portugal (AP) —

This tiny mountain town where

50 years ago three little shepherds witnessed the apparition of the Virgin, is preparing elaborate anniversary celebrations.

Roman Catholic officials have invited Pope Paul VI to visit the shrine for the yearly May 13

pilgrimage to the rocky plateau, dominated by a white basilica at the end of a mammoth esplanade. The Pope has not replied.

More than one million persons are expected for the night-long prayer and candlelight procession.

The story of Fatima began one spring day in 1917, when

Francisco, Jacinta and Lucia made their way toward Cova de

Iria, a hollow between two hills.

They said there was a flash of lightning in the clear sky. They thought it was a storm, but a second flash came and they found themselves surrounded by light in front of a beautiful Virgin standing on an oak tree. She asked them to come at exactly the same time of day on the 13th of every month.

Since the first apparition, Fatima has become one of the largest Catholic shrines in the world. It has received more than one million pilgrims a year, half of whom partook in Communion. The center's 200 priests distributed nearly 800,

000 hosts in 1966 during 20,000

Masses at all hours of the day.

About 700 couples chose the tiny Chapel of the Apparitions to be married in 1966. More than 20,

000 bleeding feet were washed at the local hospital during each yearly pilgrimage.

For most Portuguese, Fatima means penance. It means walking barefoot from the home village, sometimes for 300 kilometers under the hot sun, carrying an umbrella and a crude paper package of food. It means edging forward across the esplanade on one's knees, bearing a candle for the small altar supporting the figure of the Virgin. At night during the pilgrimage, the Holy Sacrament is exposed while thousands of candles dot the esplanade like a swarm of fireflies. Many camp in the open, roasting sardines over wood fires. Some spectacular recoveries from illness have been reported,

but the Vatican has only approved three in the past half century. The diocese reports half a dozen yearly, claiming

Fatima is more of a "spiritual recovery" center than one for illness like Lourdes. One of the latest reported was that of a paralytic 27-year-old man from the mountain town of Monteigas. After a week of bread and water on his way to the shrine, he is said to have thrown away his crutches and walked across the esplanade.

The Virgin is even more popular than Christ in Portugal.

People write the name of Mary or Fatima on their pottery, their boats, their carts and even

—in cinnamon—on rice pud-dging. The Virgin is worshipped in all her human aspects, with

Virgins of good luck, of good confinements—responsible for the birth of men and of plants—and of holy agony. For this reason, Fatima chosen as the site for an international Marian congress where groups from five continents will meet. The August congress will be preceded by a Mariological meeting in Lisbon for theologians studying the worship of the Virgin.

The two meetings will study

among other subjects the odysey of the three shepherds who had the visions of the Virgin, which raised an uproar in this

95 per cent Catholic country half

Pocket Radios Replacing African Jungle Drums

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Africa's jungle drums — once the only means of long distance communication on the Dark Continent — are seldom heard these days. They've been silenced by the modern transistor radio.

In remote jungle villages Africans now tune in to their favorite African station, or to Cairo, London or the Voice of America.

Like some insidious bug, the transistor radio has wormed its way into cities and primitive tribal areas, hitherto isolated from local and international politics.

The tiny portable radio is fast changing the Africans' way of life. It brings them the voice of their national leader or ruling party, together with a mass of foreign information.

Many look upon the little talking box as the ultimate in black magic, which does much to enhance the popularity of black government leaders.

Today most African governments place their internal and external radio services high on their priority list. The radio has become an essential part of the ruling party's political machinery. Black leaders need no longer undertake long, arduous journeys to meet the people.

From the comfort of an air-conditioned studio he can thump home the ruling party's political doctrines, knowing that radio waves will carry his words to multitudes hitherto unreachable.

High-powered radio transmitters are enabling black African leaders to project their personality and influence far beyond the borders of their own territory into countries where no self-respecting tribal chief would be without an all-wave transistor radio.

Many radio channels crisscrossing the continent are being used by quarrelling black states to further a relentless propaganda war.

Somalia, engaged in an armed border dispute with her neighbors Kenya and Ethiopia, viciously attacks the governments of both countries.

Radio Ghana, the one-time mouthpiece of deposed President Kwame Nkrumah, continues to expose the malpractices of the ousted leader and carry on a war of words with neighboring territories.

A thousand miles away in Guinea, the exiled Nkrumah frequently broadcasts on Radio Guinea — hoping to regain some of his lost prestige in the African political world.

From Cairo come programs in a dozen African languages boosting the image of the United Arab Republic's President Gamal Nasser to the four corners of black Africa.

Radio Algeria comes in loud and clear, interrupting its musical programs with revolutionary propaganda aimed mostly at the former French territories.

Tanzania, which includes former Tanganyika and the island of Zanzibar, both under Red Chinese influence, beams regular propaganda to the black masses in the white-ruled territories of Mozambique, Rhodesia and South Africa.

They hope to foment massive black uprisings in the white-dominated southern states. Red Chinese technicians are hastily completing a new 100-kilowatt transmitter which will beam propaganda to every black state.

Radio Brazzaville in the former French Congo has for years conducted a radio war of hatred against her neighbor, the former Belgian Congo.

The Voice of Nigeria beams strong programs southward to what they describe as the "racist regimes of Smith and Vorster" — Rhodesia and South Africa.

From Liberia on the steaming West African coast comes the Voice of America. Its most popular program among Africans is a nightly hour of jazz music.

The British Broadcasting Corp. operates a transmitter from black-ruled Botswana, beaming a propaganda service across the border aimed at helping to topple the rebel government of Rhodesia's Premier Ian Smith.

Even the Spanish, whose only possessions are a tiny West Coast island called Fernando Po and the two small mainland territories of Rio Muni and Spanish Sahara, beam popular music and propaganda to African states.

Nor has white-ruled South Africa been inactive in the radio war. Its external service, the Voice of South Africa, is the strongest on the continent. Transmitting regular programs in five different languages, with at least three more scheduled soon, it hopes to combat hostile attacks on its government.

Rushville City Officials Face Election

RUSHVILLE — The Rushville City Council met Monday in regular session and adopted an ordinance providing for an election on April 18. At this time, a city clerk, mayor, treasurer and six aldermen will be elected for two-year terms.

Two Boy Scout Leaders, Don Root and Ronald Haynes of Troop 35 were present and offered to assist with the clean-up of the city. The council set the "City Wide Clean Up" for April 1-15. The city will be picking up refuse, mostly everything except raw garbage and wrecked automobiles.

The Scouts will work April 1 and 8 assisting elderly folks or anyone unable to clean out their basements, etc. They will also work after school if necessary. Anyone wishing the scouts assistance may contact either of the Scout leaders.

The Council also agreed to furnish materials to paint the bandstand in Central Park, fire hydrants and anything else the city wishes painted.

Training Of Catholic Priests Shows Changes

WOODSTOCK, Md. (AP) — The modernization movement in Roman Catholicism is reflected in the radical changes in training of priests at Woodstock College, one of the nation's foremost Jesuit seminaries.

Once the seminarians were virtually isolated in the rolling hill country 20 miles west of Baltimore. Their training was dominated by a theological system devised in the Middle Ages by St. Thomas Aquinas. And they conformed to a rigid schedule, from arising at a certain time to going to bed at a certain time. But no more.

Woodstock's president, the Very Rev. Felix F. Cardegna, said the changes here are simply a reflection of the modern age, something he said can be seen in other denominations as well as in Roman Catholicism.

Father Cardegna said that it was Jesuit tradition that former methods did not equip priests to deal adequately with the problems of people who needed guidance. To help inform priests of social problems, Woodstock added a course called "Sociology of the Church."

Another new course is "Religious Anthropology," which explores the relation of religion to the cultural activities of man. Yet another new course is "The Problem of God," which includes inquiry into various modern theories, among them the "God is dead" viewpoint.

Teacher of this course, which surely would have been taboo in past times, is the Rev. John C. Murray, chief writer of the decree on religious liberty approved by the Ecumenical Council, Vatican II.

Protestant theology and the Protestant role in ecumenism also are studied.

"These days," said Father Cardegna, "the whole of theology has to be ecumenical or it's nothing. And it has to be in contact with the social problems and daily needs of people."

Rocking the World's Heart

—By David Poling
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Easter comes just when we think that everything is finished.

The faithful heard the Romans lecturing about the burial of Jesus Christ long before our professors suggested the death of God. Just when we are certain that disease, gas chambers, graveyards will have the last dirty laugh on this lovely creation, Easter unfurls the flag of victory.

And Easter is ever happening, throughout the year, beyond the precincts of springtime and the happy glow of summer. Always telling us the meaning of God's gracious love.

For me, it was Easter when Nelly Sachs received the Nobel Prize for Literature. She had escaped the Nazi butchering of Germany to write from Sweden

We, the mothers are rocking the heart of the world: the melody of peace.

A generation of German youth had been stirred when she once said, "In spite of all the horrors of the past, I believe in you . . . Together, full of grief, let us remember the victims, and then let us walk together into the future to seek again and again a new beginning—maybe far away, yet ever present; let us try to find the good dream that wants to be realized in our hearts."

Easter is the good dream that God has planted in our hearts through the resurrection of His Son.

A SMILE

COSTS NOTHING, but gives much; it enriches those who receive, without making poorer those who give. It takes only a moment, but the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. No one is so rich or mighty that he can get along without it, and no one is so poor but what he can be made rich by it. A smile creates happiness in the home, fosters good-will in business, and is the symbol of friendship. It brings rest to the weary, cheer to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and it is nature's best antidote for trouble. Yet it cannot be bought, borrowed, begged or stolen, for it is something that is of no value to anyone until it is given away. Some people are too tired to give you a smile. Give them one of yours, as no one needs a smile so much as he who has no more to give.

Extension Service's Fate Is Before Voters

JERSEYVILLE — Voters of Jersey County will be presented a second ballot at the township election on April 4, at which time a referendum is being submitted providing for continuation of the County Extension Service.

The passage of the referendum would provide for a one cent assessment per one hundred dollars assessed valuation in the county.

C. T. Kibler, who was farm adviser of Jersey County for 20 years, has accepted the chairmanship of the information committee which hopes to explain the Extension Service and its meaning in a community.

The vote comes as the Extension Service is nearing its 50th anniversary in Jersey county and in the year in which the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois is marking its 100th anniversary.

Kibler points out that the Extension Service works with five major groups: farmers and people with problems related to agriculture; agricultural industries and organizations; community resource development groups; 4-H clubs and homemakers.

Pear Tree Hardy After 138 Winters

JERSEYVILLE — The oldest fruit tree in Illinois has survived the winter and shows signs of the approach of spring. The tree, which is a variety of pear, stands on farmland four miles northeast of Jerseyville, presently owned by Frank Loy.

The tree was brought to Jersey county with a bundle of nursery stock in 1830 by a pioneer physician and landowner, the late Dr. Ralph H. Van Pelt. The pioneer and his first wife came by covered wagon from New Jersey and bought the land on which the tree remains standing. More than 400 acres constituted the initial tract.

Dr. Van Pelt subsequently sold part of the property. The present owner purchased the farm at partition sale from the heirs of the late Christopher and Nellie Nevius, who owned the land for many years.

The pear tree, planted in 1830, has been a consistent producer of fruit, and, so far as can be ascertained, there has never been a season when some fruit was not produced.

The present owner, Frank Loy, was a Jerseyville visitor Friday morning and reported the old tree sustained some damage from the ice storm that hit the area early in the year. The principal part of the tree, however, survived and is getting ready for more pear production.

Venerable Cass Establishment Victim Of Times

By VIRGIL REITHER

BEARDSTOWN — Changing times and conditions in the laundry business are indicated in the decision of Tom Bollhorst, third generation owner and manager of one of Beardstown's oldest business establishments, for making drastic adjustments in his operation.

Effective March 24, he announced, the local plant will no longer do laundry work, as it has done since established as the Beardstown Steam Laundry by the family in 1903.

The plant has been employing about 25 people, most of them women, but under the new arrangement, devoting all time to dry cleaning and rug cleaning, there will be just four employees. Laundry work will be done in Jacksonville.

Those continuing to work will include Tom Bollhorst and his wife, Grace Olson and Eugene Hilton.

Charles M. Bollhorst, his son, William, and Tom have been involved in the business. Mr. Bollhorst, now retired, founded the business in one building in 1903 and in 1905 moved to a larger building at 201 E. Second.

Many of the women employees had more than 20 years service.

Nell Jump worked for the Bollhorsts about 40 years and Grace Olson and Gene Hilton have more than 20 years service. Frances Booth had 22 years of service. Many others were also "veterans."

Several Minnesota creameries confirmed Saturday that they have signed four-month interim contracts with the NFO to pay a two-cent per quart increase. Farmers now receive 8 to 10 cents a quart.

Creamery managers in Appleton, Benson and Gonvick, Minn., confirmed that the contracts have been signed. They will go into effect only after the milk volume of all contracts signed matches the volume handled by eight major Midwest processors. The creameries did not identify the eight processors.

Victor Holst of Austin, Minn., an assistant to Oren Lee Staley, president of the NFO, said six southeastern Minnesota creameries also signed the contract.

In Corning, Iowa, NFO headquarters, Staley—without elaboration—said: "Contracts are being signed at NFO prices. This is good and it's the whole reason we called the holding action."

As to when the withholding might end, Staley said: "The action is on indefinitely, still dependent upon the processors and handlers paying the two-cent-a-quart increase."

Victor Holst of Austin, Minn., an assistant to Staley, president of the NFO, said six southeastern Minnesota creameries also signed the contract.

In North Dakota, an NFO spokesman said interim contracts were signed Friday with five creameries. At La Moure, N.D., Art Salzsieder, manager of a Farmers Co-op, said a clause in the contract stipulates the price increase would go into effect "upon a national announcement by NFO officers that he demands of the holding action have been met."

Salzsieder said deliveries from farmers dropped 65 to 70 per cent to his firm as a result of the holding action. Salzsieder said the holding action was continuing Saturday.

The NFO withholding action continued unchanged in Ohio, beyond some tentative moves to start negotiations with processors. But the supplies of milk in Ohio still were adequate since the majority of the state's dairymen are not NFO members.

In the Bloomington, Ill. area, members of the NFO purchased hundreds of dollars worth of milk from retail stores and distributed it among local institutions. About 75 dairy farmers from Tazewell, McLean, Livingston and Woodford counties bought the milk at supermarkets.

Jim Vogel, of Minonk, spokesman for the group, said between $600 and $800 of milk was purchased.

In New York five Albany area farmers—including Albany County's Farmer of the Year, Carl Peterson, of KVNOX—started dumping milk in support of the NFO's campaign.

The five—who are not NFO members—said they would continue to withhold milk for the duration of the protest action.

Meanwhile, spokesmen for Albany supermarkets said, "Next week will tell" if milk dumping locally is having any effect on supplies. They said supplies now are about at normal levels.

The National Farmers Organization held its first meetings in New England this week, but the response thus far was unclear.

John S. Adams, general manager of the New England Milk Producers Association, said in a statement from Warwick, R.I. that milk holding has "a tendency to violence."

He added that action through cooperatives "is the only reasonable approach to the price problem."

Adams said such action has been taken to "improve the producer price" through a federal order program in New England, New Jersey and New York.

Two large dairy barns were destroyed by fire in DeKalb County in northeastern Indiana in the past two nights. Both dairy herds were rescued but 22 calves were lost.

In Colorado, NFO demonstrators bought all the milk on the shelves of two supermarkets in the dairy farm center of Fort Morgan and dumped it.

As the FBI appeared on the verge of abandoning the search of the suspected burial grounds Saturday, an unidentified couple drove up to the site in a state police car. The couple told police they had lived in a house diagonally across the road from the Celso's home and said they had seen digging going on there.

Celso and his wife will be called before a federal grand jury at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the federal building in Newark, N.J.

Celso recently was released from prison after serving part of a three-year sentence for possession of stolen goods. He had been convicted with Harold (Kayo) Konigsberg for possession of about $125,000 in clothing hijacked in Parkville, N.Y. The FBI has described Konigsberg as one of the most notorious loan sharks in the United States.

Celso also has served a four-year sentence in Connecticut for burglary and has been arrested in the past on suspicion of book-making.

He met secretly with three of them there March 2. After one of them disclosed the meeting, Thant confirmed that he had exchanged views with them in his private capacity and not as U.N. secretary-general—the procedure he uses to bypass North Vietnam's stand that the Vietnamese question belongs not to the United Nations but to the Geneva conference machinery.

The informants said Thant outlined his new ideas to the North Vietnamese in that talk and, after his return to New York, distributed the paper to the eight governments last week, when he conferred with U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg.

Russ Trawler

Judge von der Heydt said nothing about imprisonment or putting a hold on the 178-foot trawler and its cargo, now at Kodiak, so presumably it is free to sail.

The sentence came at an arraignment at which U.S. Atty. Richard McVeigh had recommended a fine of $8,000. Democratic Sens. Ernest Gruening and E. L. Bartlett of Alaska had reported earlier that the State Department had recommended an $8,000 fine and they called this "a mere tap on the wrist."

They called for the $10,000 fine, imprisonment of Kushchenko and confiscation of his vessel, the SRTM 8-547.

The trawler was the second Soviet fishing boat to be seized in Alaskan waters this month. The captain of the first also pleaded no contest to a charge of fishing within the three-mile territorial limit and paid a fine of $5,000. Since then a nine-mile exclusive fishing zone has been added to the three-mile zone. The Coast Guard said Kushchenko's vessel was 5 1/2 miles from shore.

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP)—Oak Park High School rolled up 58 points Saturday night to win the 37th Oak Park relay in one of the nation's largest indoor track meets.

With 72 schools and some 1,500 athletes competing, Oak Park finished far ahead of Harlan of Chicago which had 39 points. Phillips of Chicago was third with 27.

The Weather Elsewhere

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO (AP) — It was showery, but balmy in Illinois Saturday, with 70-degree weather busting out all over.

The Easter Sunday forecast generally called for showers, thundershowers, and slightly cooler temperatures.

The mercury rose to 75 degrees in Chicago during the afternoon as thousands took advantage of the relatively dry spell of balminess to jam the boulevards with their autos or stroll in the parks. The zoos, the forest preserves and the beaches drew more thousands, and the uniform of the day was short-sleeved or sweatshirts, frocks or pedal pushers.

Amateur car washers cluttered alleys and passed the lazy time of day gossipping. It was still too early for shrubs and flowers in the northern section of the state, but Roland Eisenbels, Cook County conservation superintendent, said: "With two more days like this, spring flowers will be here in no time."

The early robins looked happy they'd come, after all.

Brewer Fires 11 Under To Go 9 Up

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Highly-charged Gay Brewer shot an unbelievable 11-under par 61 Saturday and headed toward a possible all-time record victory in the $75,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Sinking putts of more than 20 feet, holing out on the fly from a trap and nailing an eagle on another hole, the 10-year veteran from Middletown, Ohio, fashioned a 54-hole score of 191, 25 under par.

He needed only to shoot a 65 in the final round Sunday to break the 72-hole PGA scoring record of 257, set by Mike Souchak on the Brackenridge course in San Antonio, Tex., in 1955.

Nine Strokes Up
Brewer's fantastic round of nine birdies and an eagle put him nine strokes ahead of his closest challengers, Phil Rodgers and Ken Still, tied at 200. Both shot 67 for the third round. Brewer, who won this tournament a year ago when Doug Sanders was disqualified for failing to sign his scorecard, set the course record for the 6,380-yard Pensacola Country Club layout and came within a shot of tying the best round ever played in a PGA event — a 60, held by half a dozen players. The previous course record was 62, set by Bob Rosburg in 1959, playing under improved lie positions because of rain.

Brewer's card contained 10 3s — an unusual number in a major tournament.

"I didn't have a break all day," Brewer commented in just after his remarkable round.

The pug-nosed midwesterner, who now plays out of Dallas, Tex., started with a 25-foot putt on the first hole and seemed to gain momentum with every stroke after that, dazzling the gallery of 10,000.

Keeps Hot Pace
He put his approach shot within 2½ feet on the third, reached the par-5 sixth in two shots but two-putted for 4, also two-putted the 495-yard eighth and rolled in a sidehill putt on the ninth to turn in 31, five under par.

At the 314-yard 10th, his blast landed in the cup on a fly for a birdie three. He birdied the par 5 12th and at the 495-yard 14th, he hit a drive and five-iron to within 12 feet and sank for an eagle.

His final two birdies were at the 16th, where he holed a 15-footer, and at the 17th, where he came out to within three feet from the rough.

Brewer said he feared his nine-stroke lead was not safe.

"Remember Ken Venturi lost the Masters when he was eight shots ahead, and Arnold Palmer came from nine shots back to win the Open in 1960," the leader said.

Pretense Takes Gulfstream Run

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Llangollen Farm's Pretense, handicapped champion of the winter in California, took command midway in the stretch and scored a 2¼ length victory Saturday in the $137,600 Gulfstream Park Handicap.

Reginald N. Webster's Amherst was second, Bokum and Scott's Quinta was a surprising third and William G. Helis Jr.'s Sky Guy got up for fourth in the nine horse field.

Pretense, packing top weight of 126 pounds with lanky Johnny Sellers in the saddle, ran the 1¼ mile in a comparatively slow 2:01 4-5, after fractions of :23 3-5, :47 4-5, 1:12 2-5 and 1:36 3-5.

The record is 1:59 4-5, set by Coaltown in 1949 and tied by Round Table in 1958.

Mighty Bruins End Undefeated

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Giant Lew Alcindor and tiny Mike Warren blended their diverse talents and led unbeaten UCLA to the NCAA national collegiate basketball championship Saturday night with a 76-64 victory over hopeful but hapless Dayton.

A loudly pro-Dayton crowd of 18,892 and a national television audience watched the top-ranked Bruins score their 30th victory of the season — and perhaps viewed the start of a dynasty.

Of UCLA's starting five, Warren is a junior and the rest are sophomores.

Alcindor, 7-foot-1½ inch sophomore All-America and Player of the Year, and the 5-foot-10 Warren were, in reality, the long and the short of it.

Alcindor tossed in 20 points before leaving the game with 5:17 remaining, dominated both boards and, by his mere towering presence, intimidated the Dayton attack.

Warren finished with 17 points and served as floor general in UCLA's devastating fast break and chief worry wart in their demoralizing full-court press defense.

It was simply no contest. Dayton, unranked and riding a string of upsets, missed its first seven shots and Alcindor blocked another one.

Settle Game Early
Moments later, the swift Bruins ran off 12 straight points and the Flyers found themselves in a 20-4 hole from which they never recovered.

Warren was the chief architect in the burst, pulling down three rebounds, tipping in one shot and driving for another three-point play. With 9:37 remaining in the half, it was all over.

The outmanned Flyers were terribly, terribly tight and obviously nervous in the early going, and hit only nine of 38 first-half field goal attempts.

The young Bruins did not play their best game either, making many, many mistakes, but it was simply too much UCLA.

By winning, UCLA:

Became only the fourth major-college team in NCAA history to complete an undefeated season. The others were UCLA in 1964, North Carolina in 1957 and San Francisco in 1956.

By winning, UCLA:

Became only the second team to win three national championships in four years. Kentucky turned the trick in 1948-49-51.

Tied an NCAA tournament record of 12 straight victories set by the Kentucky teams in 1948-49-51-52.

The Bruins, who held an 18-point lead, 38-20, at halftime, enjoyed a margin of about 20 points most of the last half before both coaches — John Wooden of UCLA and Don Donohue of Dayton — cleared their benches in the late going.

Proud Of Club
"I'm extremely proud of this team," said UCLA Coach John Wooden, who won his third national title. "They stood up under tremendous pressure, that started before we played our first game."

Lucius Allen had 19 points for UCLA and Lynn Shackelford added 10. Another member of the Bruins varsity five, Kenny Heitz, had only four, but concentrated his efforts on defending against Dayton's Don May.

May, who scored 34 points in Dayton's semifinal victory over North Carolina Friday night, finished with 21 in the title game — but was limited to six in the decisive first half.

Houston, led by Elvin Hayes, finished with 21 in the title game.

College Rules Much Too Strict, Unrealistic—May Be Cause Of Some Cheating In Athletics

Study Shows Almost All Are Guilty

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A former Big Ten football coach said college rules are so strict and unrealistic that they encourage hypocrisy.

"Everybody cheats a little, some cheat a whole lot," the spokesman, who preferred to remain anonymous, said in discussing the recent crackdown on the University of Illinois in the $21,000 slush fund case.

Another coach who moved to a different conference commented: "You can't let a boy go around with holes in his shoes, but if you help him you are breaking the code. It's ridiculous. No wonder the rules always are being broken."

Illinois was slapped down for doling out trivial sums — $15 and $35 a month generally — to needy football and basketball players over a five-year period.

The university, through President Dr. David D. Henry, got the whistle on itself, only to get the book thrown at it.

Careers Destroyed
Seven star athletes were suspended, five permanently, their careers virtually destroyed. The Big Ten Conference told Illinois to fire head football coach Pete Elliott, basketball coach Harry Combes and assistant Howard Braun or face suspension. The coaches resigned.

"It's like getting the electric chair for spitting on the sidewalk," said Clive Follmer, former Illinois athlete and now a successful attorney in Champaign, Ill.

"You have one policeman to patrol a city. He nabs 17 lawbreakers and three million go free. This is the same thing."

Somebody suggested it was like being tried and convicted by the Mafia or the James boys.

Convicts Guilty
Half a dozen of the conference members who voted such stiff punishment for the offenders have been caught with their fingers in the till themselves. Some got off more lightly. Michigan State is sweating out the final year of a four-year suspended probation for paying air fare home for one of its football players.

A spokesman for the conference had an explanation.

"Illinois kept a detailed book on its fund and the disbursements," the official said. "The fund was operated with the knowledge of the coaches, who knew it was against the rules. The evidence against others is not always as concrete."

Also it was disclosed that a meeting was held recently among Big Ten athletic directors, faculty sponsors and some coaches at which it was decided unanimously that, instead of following the general National Collegiate Athletic Association policy of a $15 monthly extra payment to students on athletic scholarships, the league would support a policy of 70 tenders — or scholarships — a year for each member in all sports.

"Illinois Wrote Rule"
"We put in a rule that anyone violating these provisions would be subject to suspension," the Big Ten spokesman said. "Illinois wrote the rule."

Still, the severity of the judgment was widely criticized.

"This was just peanuts compared with what others are doing," said Doug Mills, the Illinois athletic director for 25 years before resigning Dec. 1 for what he called personal reasons.

A Green Bay Packer star, who played in the Big Ten, said he was amazed at the severity of the punishment.

"When I was in college it was common knowledge that a lot of the guys were getting extra money and special favors — gifts from alumni, tickets for trips home and cash when they needed it," he said. "Everybody knows it. You just can't do anything about it."

Big Ten Strict
"In the Big Ten, you can't even give a boy spending money for his laundry or a weekend date," a coach said. "If he comes to the campus for a look, you can't let him touch a football or dribble a basketball."

"He gets the feeling that the school doesn't want him. So he goes to a campus where they throw out the red carpet for him — legal or not. And they do. When one of these major Big Ten schools wants a boy, they have a way of getting him."

A broad survey by The Associated Press after the Illinois incident disclosed that athletic directors, coaches and ex-players talk glibly of existing abuses — but strictly off the record.

Most Are Guilty
The conclusion drawn from interviews was that most schools are guilty in some way.

The college policing bodies — the various conferences and the tough National Collegiate Athletic Association — try to keep a close eye on infractions. They have their own gum-shoe investigators scouring the campuses. They check out every report of a possible violation.

But they apparently only manage to scrape the surface. There are subtle ways of evading the law, and most of them are used.

Main offenders are wealthy alumni or alumni groups.

"You'll find most of the offenses, such as these at Illinois, deal with needy boys who have no means of picking up even pocket money," said David Downey, an All-Big Ten basketball star at Illinois in 1961-63 and now an insurance executive and lawyer in Champaign.

Seems OK Morally
"You see a boy with holes in his shoes or with a frayed jacket, so you give him a few bucks. Technically, this is against the rules. Morally, to most, it seems all right."

Later, the work program was launched. Under this rule, an athlete on scholarship could work around the campus, doing odd jobs at the going rate. The rule was abused. Some athletes got paid without working. Others got exorbitant fees.

Then in 1957 the current grant-in-aid policy was adopted. Under this rule, generally in force throughout the country, an athlete's grant had to be limited to his scholarship, board and books with $15 extra a month for spending money. The Big Ten refused to adopt the $15 spending money clause.

The Illinois fund was set up five years ago without the knowledge of university administrators. Donations were solicited from friends. The coaches disbursed the sums, usually to players in need.

One of them was Rich Jones, a promising Negro basketball player from Memphis who was being eyed by the pros. He was suspended permanently for receiving $720 — in chunks of $35 a month.

"Before I came to Illinois more than 200 colleges tried to recruit me," the 6-foot-7 hardboard wizard said. "They offered me money and cars and almost anything I wanted. I wanted to go to Illinois. Now my whole future may be ruined."

Jones said he wasn't aware that the handouts were against the rules.

Steve Kuberski, a 6-7 basketball ace from Moline, Ill., received a one-year suspension for accepting a total of $490.

"I worked in a mill during my vacation breaks, but I never saw a paycheck," he said. "The money apparently went to my sponsor who put it in the fund. I thought I was spending my own money. I didn't know I was doing anything wrong."

The largest financial outlay was the $1,945 given to Cyril Pinder, a classy football halfback from Hollywood, Fla. Much of the amount — underwritten by Champaign business men — was used for round trip plane fares for Pinder to visit his widowed mother.

Iowa once had its membership in the conference suspended for nine months and 22 of its athletes declared permanently ineligible for giving illegal aid.

Farm Fire Destroys Shed And Equipment

Fire of undetermined origin resulted in several thousand dollars damage at a farm about eight miles west of Jacksonville on U.S. 36-54, a few minutes before three o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Firemen remained at the scene of the fire until 8:30 p.m. and poured 12,000 gallons of water on the smoldering ruins before returning to the station.

The fire broke out in a large barn at the residence of Dorothy Waterfield, listed as route three, Winchester. The barn was quickly engulfed by the blaze, and the wind-whipped flames spread to a nearby implement shed and garage.

The barn and implement shed were total losses. Also destroyed in those buildings was a tractor, a cultivator, a disc, a mounted corn picker, a hammer mill, some smaller tools, some seed beans and approximately 350 to 400 bales of hay and straw. One tractor was saved.

Jacksville firemen answered the alarm with a pumper and the city water wagon, and were able to stop the blaze before it destroyed the garage. Firemen also prevented the flames from spreading to the Waterfield house.

The barn, implement shed and other items destroyed were owned by Alan Schofield, son-in-law of Mrs. Waterfield.

Schofield and Assistant Fire Chief Alvin Smith agreed the damage would be several thousand dollars, but said a closer estimate could not be made until after further investigation.

A CIPS crew was called to disconnect electricity to the barn and shed.

State police directed traffic, which had to be stopped for several minutes.

Rotary Conference Set For Jacksonville

James A. Dunlap, Governor of District 646, Rotary International, will preside at the conference to be held in this city March 31, and April 1.

More than 1,000 Rotarians and their families are expected to attend, according to an announcement by Richmond Simmons, president of the local Rotary club.

The conference will be held at MacMurray College and will include plenary sessions, group discussion of Rotary subjects, and entertainment features.

The purpose of the meeting is to further the program of Rotary by exploring new opportunities for bettering commuties, raising the standards of business practices, working with youth, and furthering friendly relations between people of different nations.

The conference program will feature an address by Kaneyiro Matsumoto, Japan, representing the president of Rotary International.

Other speakers will be Jeff Williams, lawyer, humorist and philosopher from Oklahoma City, and Leon F. Montague, Evanston, Illinois.

Under the leadership of Rotary's world president, Richard L. Evans of Salt Lake City, Utah, U.S.A., more than 600,000 Rotarians who belong to 12,600 clubs in 134 countries are uniting their efforts for world understanding and international cooperation.

The program of the international president stresses the importance of being concerned with youth, home and family, and respect for law as one part of a ten point guide for Rotary clubs.

The Rotary district of this area includes 47 clubs and covers west central Illinois. Each club has been visited by the district governor since he took office in July 1966.

Jacksonville Tree Fund At $635

Amid 80 degree temperatures during the past few days, thoughts turned to spring, and several new friends of the Jacksonville Tree Fund joined in the campaign to raise finances to purchase new trees for the city.

Presently in its second year, the campaign is sponsored by the Jacksonville Pilot club and the Jacksonville Journal Courier.

The fund drive, which during its previous year was helpful in securing over 150 trees for city boulevards, is designed to re-plant many areas of the city that became barren when the giant elms were removed.

Sponsors of the fund drive hope to have sufficient finances to begin planting young trees within the next month.

One contributor, in addition to her gift to the fund, wrote: "I wish to give to the Tree Fund, and although I don't get out much, I was taken for a ride one day, and was appalled to see all the bare boulevards and also Central Park."

"It will take some years for them to return to the way I always remember Jacksonville. I can recall when Jacksonville was called the 'Athens of the West,' but with all the elm trees gone, it reminded me of a ghost."

"If Each Person"

"Enclosed is a small amount, and if each person would help, it would soon be a new start."

During the past several years, the Pilot club has been instrumental in re-planting Central Park with several varieties of trees. Two years ago, the Pilot club and Journal Courier decided to join forces in a cooperative effort to bring natural beauty back to the city.

During the first fund drive, approximately $3,000 was collected from persons who also had the same wish.

This year, the campaign is so designed to allow a contributor to pick which area he wishes a tree placed, on boulevards, in parks or cemeteries.

Those wishing to assist in the program to beautify Jacksonville are reminded of the coupon appearing on the back page of the Journal Courier.

Housing Authority Considers New Idea For Elderly Units

The Morgan County Housing Authority is now considering new ideas that would tend to de-centralize public housing in Jacksonville.

William Cole, executive director of the agency, said Saturday that approximately 100 units of additional housing for elderly residents could be constructed this year provided the federal government approved plans and specifications.

Cole said a relatively new concept in public housing will be tried if sufficient builders or a single contractor could be found to provide bids.

Generally, past contracts have been awarded to a single contractor who would accept the responsibility for an entire project site which was already owned by the housing authority.

The contract involves large sums of money and requires heavy financial backing.

Recently, the federal government has relaxed some of the red tape so that smaller builders might qualify for construction of low rent housing.

"At least," Cole commented, "my services and consultation will be available to anyone with construction experience who would be willing to submit proposals which could be used in Jacksonville."

The proposed 100 units designed for occupancy by the elderly could be located in several locations on property owned by the builder, purchased by the builder or available for purchase by the agency.

A single building material supplier could supply architectural designs, building lots and sub-contract for the construction of the units in groups of a half-dozen or so in a variety of locations.

A single unit could be as small as 400 to 500 square feet, although some of the units would be designed for double occupancy of 800 to 1,000 square feet. If the units are built on a single or possibly a couple of sites, it would be necessary to have space available for recreation facilities.

Cole said it would also be possible to build a two or three-story building with elevator service if such a site were available.

There are so many varied possibilities for the smaller builder that the housing authority would have difficulty giving a flat "no" answer to almost any sound idea for design. Several small builders could get together for construction purposes.

The entire program for the additional 100 units is quite flexible according to Cole. "We will be happy to discuss the program with any qualified builder who will take the time to present his ideas," Cole concluded.

E. St. Louis Ahead In Fiscal Aid Race

By LARRY KRAMP SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—In the drawn-out Illinois legislative hearings on fiscal aid to cities, East St. Louis appears to be winning the title of city in the most need of help.

"It seems to me you're in about as poor a shape as anything I listened to," Sen. Everett R. Peters, R-St. Joseph, told an East St. Louis spokesman at one hearing.

Everything another city told of its troubles, Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Belleview, whose district contains East St. Louis, compared the two and found other cities of 25,000 or more population better off.

A decision on what to do about such fiscal aid is being withheld until Gov. Otto Kerner presents his budget around mid-April.

The legislature is considering whether to give cities authority to double the half cent city sales tax and to impose other local taxes.

Another suggestion is to appropriate aid from state general revenue on the basis of city populations.

The hearings also brought testimony that the East St. Louis crisis was a prediction of trouble for other Illinois cities.

The reaction of Peters came to testimony by George Washnis, administrative assistant to East St. Louis Mayor Alvin G. Fields.

Washnis said the city has a 21 per cent unemployment rate, a deficit of $815,000, has 42 per cent of its houses below standard, and many areas without sidewalks.

Editorial Comment

Get The Message?

According to University of Toronto professor Marshall McLuhan, who is making some of the biggest splashes in the academic pool these days, "the medium is the message."

What this means, if we interpret his interpreters correctly, is that the way men communicate with one another determines the kind of society they live in — that the means of communication is more important than what is being communicated. In our electronic society, for instance, the dots that makes up the picture on a television tube are more important than the picture itself.

Most people have failed to get McLuhan's message, however. They go on expecting something of value from television. They go on reading newspapers to keep informed. They go on buying and enjoying books, which McLuhan says are on the way out, though he has written three of them himself.

Others dispute his contentions vigorously. If the medium is indeed the message, says Arthur R. Murphy Jr., president of the McCall Corporation, then "the time has come to do something about the situation. For... unless we have meaningful messages to transmit via a medium, we had better close down our press or our transmitter right now."

In the kind of world we are living in, says Murphy, the primary mission of the communications media — newspapers, magazines, radio, television and anything else — is to seek out the facts and arrange them in a pattern that accurately and meaningfully presents the nearest possible representation of the truth.

But there is, he maintains, an "understanding gap" of serious dimensions in this country today. Americans have too little knowledge, and even less understanding, of what is going on in the nation and the world.

"We have put such store in proving how fast we can process material, how brilliant our color is, how much material we can transmit or print, how many books we publish, how many cameras or reporters we can put on the scene... that we have forgotten that the important thing in communication is not so much how we transmit information but what information is transmitted."

We must not be seduced by the idea that "the medium is the message," he urges, but rather become devoted to the ideal that content is all important, and that the primary ingredient of content is truth.

"We must rededicate ourselves to the beauties and the revelations of the English language and learn again how to write it, read it and understand it — for it is the greatest communications medium of all."

A Task For Youth

For the most part, wars are started and directed by old men and fought by young men. It is thus readily seen that no one has as great a stake as the young men — and young women — in achieving a world whose governments will no longer use war as an instrument of policy.

The task presents enormous difficulties. Perhaps they are insurmountable. But the young, full of vigor and hope and ideals, are less daunted by obstacles than their elders. Today's young people may also take heart from circumstances of history. It can be argued that, if only because they came on the scene when man first wielded the power to destroy all his kind, they are the first generation with a reasonable chance of ending war.

Pope Paul's admonitions in Rome on Palm Sunday have a bearing on this. While his opinions were couched in religious terms, in a sense he spoke to the youth of every faith and in every land when he called upon young people to strive for "a true peace... that leads men to respect each other, to cooperate in a brotherly manner, to not base their hopes on the hegemony and upon the arms race."

The pope observed that young people are good at "courageously and noisily" promoting an ideal. "No one," he said, "matches youngsters in enthusiasm and vivacity; no one stops them and quiets them when they are taken by a fantasy that possesses and exalts them." It is interesting to think what might happen if young men and women the world over were to become possessed and exalted by the dream of peace, and were to devote their energies and talents to realizing the dream.

Check And Double Check But Not On 'Over There'

By DAVE BURGIN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. — WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Until recently, one could cash a personal check for practically any size in practically any Washington bank by uttering two simple words:

"Over there."

A bank official here told of a neatly dressed man who picked up a counter check at his bank, made it out to $50 in cash, strolled up to the teller and calmly handed it to her. She asked, per usual, for identification.

"Over there," the man replied.

"Oh!" the teller said, then counted out five $10 bills, thinking, too, to ask if he'd like smaller change.

"Over there" in Washington lingo refers to a plot on the Virginia side of the Potomac on which stands the headquarters of the Central Intelligence Agency. Folks who work there, it seems, prefer to call it "over there" and get out of any conversation about it, which is against the rules.

This bank has cashed "over there" checks before, the official said, but the $50 one was the first phony. The official said that, in trying to run down the crook, somebody "over there" had "Employees of this agency are not permitted to cash checks."

bad checks."

Michigan's Gov. George Romney, leading most polls for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, still hasn't found the way to keep out of verbal trouble — off the record or on. His five-minute talk to a GOP congressional fund-raising dinner was a badly stitched patchwork of old jokes and tired lines lifted from last month's speeches.

Earlier, he was embarrassed at a published report, drawn from what Romney thought was an off-the-record chat, that had called Republican Sen. Charles Percy an "opportunist."

Percy later told Washington political reporter David Broder he was hurt and that his wife was "shocked" at the governor's remark. Not published was Percy's further report of his wife's reaction: "Why, YOU never even talked that way about your opponents!"

Democrats profess to be heartened at the prospect of facing Gov. Romney in 1968. Though polls still show him leading President Johnson in a head-to-head test, party leaders think the governor may stumble away ports Romney had not done well at the big GOP dinner. Boomed Rowe:

"I hope he wins the nomination. He's my favorite Republican candidate!"

Hartzog Jr., director of the National Park Service, has announced details of an elk management program for Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming-Montana-Idaho, based on the recommendations approved by an advisory board to the secretary of the Interior."

Blow Faith's Trumpet; Proclaim: 'God Lives'

Dr. Loev

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D., Newspaper Enterprise Assn. He is dead! That was the verdict and, the word having been given, the body was removed from the Cross and placed in a tomb. Another tragedy and another sadness for a family and a family of friends. So Jesus of Nazareth was dead.

He is dead! That was the verdict and, the word having been given, the fact of God was removed from men's minds and placed in a museum. Another tragedy and another sadness for the family of mankind, leaving another poignant loneliness. So God was dead.

The fact remains that, death on Friday was met by life on Easter. It isn't just wishful thinking or sentimental dreaming. There was a reality that met those disciples and sent men daring and dreaming.

The fact remains that the obituary men have written out for God is not as absolute as they thought. There is a reality beyond the tombs of men's doubts and that still sends men daring and dreaming.

There were those who said they couldn't believe in Jesus because he couldn't and wouldn't come down from a Cross. And there are those who say they can't believe in God because he couldn't or wouldn't stop the horrible tragedies which have beset our generations.

One can understand this verdict of death. Look around at so many who claim the name of Christian and see how unlike Easter they've gotten at life. Every one of those fears, prejudices, hatreds and selfish running away either to play or to pout pile up the circumstantial evidence which says: "God is dead." Either there is powerless love, say these critics, or there is loveless power, and in either instance, it's intolerable. So seal up the tomb and roll up the great stone. He's dead.

Yet the undefeated fact remains that the whole Christian faith sprang out of that tomb and men insisted that Christ was alive. The Easter of that time so long ago must become our Easter also.

It is the shame of the ages that men so easily leave Easter in the past tense, instead of translating it into present-day boldness. Either the Christian community moves out with a new imagination and daring in our time or the rumor will still be abroad that God is dead.

The Moravians do a brave thing on Easter morning. They go into the cemetery at the break of day to sing their Easter anthem. With the loud notes of a trumpet, they walk in procession to the place made hallowed by many a memory to proclaim their faith. This Easter of 1967 demands that we march against war, hatreds, fears, tramping into the midst of slums and ghettos, blowing the trumpets of faith until the old tombs are broken. For, by the living God, Easter is to be known through living persons in living situations now.

Ann Landers:

Wrestling With Boyfriend Frowned On

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: Although I have told my daughter many of the same things she has read in your column, she insists I am old fashioned, but she says you are the living end.

Will you please help me out and express your views of a 17-year-old female who wrestles with her boyfriend on the living room floor. What do you think of this behavior—even if she is wearing jeans?

The girl is a good student and sensible about most things, but for some mysterious reason she cannot understand why I object to her rolling around on the floor with her boyfriend. Thank you, Ann. —MRS. T. H. R.

Dear Mrs. T. H. R.: This type of behavior is what I call "kidding on the square." It is not only unattractive but it is a teasing mechanism which could lead to trouble.

A 17-year-old girl should keep vertical when entertaining her boyfriend. And she should be able to count four feet on the floor at all times — her two and his two.

ing four blocks away. We had talked about marriage and I was sure he was serious about me. I thought the move would bring him around, but I was wrong.

Now I never see him unless I invite him for dinner. An old neighbor told me that a career gal who rented my apartment is now cooking for him as I once did.

Do you think I was dumb to move? Please tell me because there will be another vacancy in that building soon and I can have it if I want it. —MOM'S APPLE PIE

Dear Mom: This guy doesn't want to marry you, dearie. He only wants to "EAT" with you. Let somebody else feed his face.

Dear Ann Landers: One of the best things about your column is that it makes our own troubles seem small when we read what other people have to put up with. I refer to the letter from the wife who was unhappy because her husband carried pictures of his parents in his wallet instead of her and the children.

I have the same problem but I never told anyone. I just sat around feeling sorry for myself. When that letter appeared in the paper, I showed it to a friend and asked her what she thought about it. Her reply knocked me for a loop. She said, "I wish I had the problem. My husband has been carrying a picture of his old girl friend for 9 years."

Now I feel lucky. Thanks, Ann. —NO MORE MOANING

Dear No: I hope the gal who wrote the original letter sees yours. Maybe she'll feel lucky, too.

Confidential to Scooby-Dooby-Do: Forget it. If you'd spend your energy DOING the job, instead of figuring out how to avoid doing it, you'd be a spectacular success.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

To Outside Advice on Child

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My husband and I are trying to make a success of a dairy farm. We live in the real country. Our 3-year-old boy doesn't have any neighbors' children of his own age to play with. Last weekend a college friend of mine said he needed socializing with other youngsters and that he should be entered in the nursery school 15 miles away. I am already up at 5 every morning to take care of my chores of cooking for my husband and the two men we employ. I just don't have the time to transport Timmy back and forth from nursery school every day.

ANSWER: We don't try to do it.

Listen. If I give ear to what other people tell us our children need, we can go crazy. And that goes for professional experts as well as the amateur kind. Even the professional advisers hand out such contradictory commandments that we get dizzy if we pay any attention to them.

One will say, "What your child needs are the socializing influences of nursery school, for heaven's sake, deny them to him. Because whatever profit he gains from play with others under the eagle eye of some adult bent on his socialization will be canceled out by experience of an irritable mother who's bitten off more than she can chew.

So if you are going to resent the time spent in exposing your child to the amiable influences of nursery school, for heaven's sake, deny them to him. Because whatever profit he gains from play with others under the eagle eye of some adult bent on his socialization will be canceled out by experience of an irritable mother who's bitten off more than she can chew.

Less Cooking for Pork

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Q — We were always warned to cook pork loin roasts a very long time. Now someone tells me it is safe to cut down on the cooking time. Will you please set me straight on this?

A — After a series of experiments and testings on cooking of pork loin roasts by experts of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, Rhea Staggs, the board's director of home economics, makes this report:

Less cooking time is needed to prepare pork loin roasts. Research at Iowa State University compared the effect of degrees of doneness (170 degrees and 185 degrees) and several oven temperatures (300 degrees, 325 degrees, 350 degrees and 375 degrees) upon the roast.

Results showed that a 3-lb. roast cooked at 170 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes was tender and juicy. A 3-lb. roast cooked at 185 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes was tender and juicy. A 3-lb. roast cooked at 300 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes was tender and juicy. A 3-lb. roast cooked at 325 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes was tender and juicy. A 3-lb. roast cooked at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes was tender and juicy. A 3-lb. roast cooked at 375 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes was tender and juicy.

Conclusion: Less cooking time is needed to prepare pork loin roasts.

A letter from Winnipeg reads in part, "Do you ever open with a bid of four no-trump? If you do, what does the bid mean?"

The answer to this question is that we do use the four no-trump opening bid about once every year or so and when we do we are asking for aces. In other words our opening four no-trump is immediate Blackwood.

Today's hand shows this bid at work. South is a trifle shocked to find that he is expected to play a diamond slam without a diamond in his hand but he recovers from the shock in time to collect for the game, slam and rubber.

It is evident that North and South would have no trouble getting to six diamonds on almost any bidding sequence, but the opening four no-trump is really valuable here.

Suppose, for example, that North opened with a natural forcing two diamond bid or an artificial forcing two club bid.

East is not vulnerable. He can't be expected to get into the bidding at the five level but any East worth his salt would surely get into action at the two level and stick in a two spade overcall.

South would pass and West would bid either three hearts or three spades. This would not stop North from trying Blackwood at his second turn to bid but it also would not stop East and West taking a save at six spades. Six spades would be down three tricks for 500 points but that is a lot less than paying for a successful slam.

March

March is cold.
March is windy.
I was told—
By a girl named Cindy.

When it blows,
I'll hold my hat.
When it snows,
I'll slide in that.

Days will come,
Bright and sunny.
We will hum—
Songs gay and funny.

March is promise
Of Spring to be.
All is goodness
For you and me.

Let's Go Birding

Cardinal And Junco

By Emma Mae Leonhard

The Cardinal had had plenty of breakfast, more than enough hearts from the sunflower seeds, his favorite food. Unintentionally he had evidently left crumbs from the seeds on the snow-laced ground: for a Slate-colored Junco was gleaming its breakfast from the left-overs, its favorite food too.

For some reason Mr. Cardinal became curious at the Junco's performance and then intensely attentive. He seemed to be talking to himself. "What in the world is that little Snow Bird (The Junco was just a snow bird to him.) finding to eat? And what dainty manners he is displaying. No wonder his bill is always white, and, oh dear, my face is always black." And he guiltily washed his face in the little snow crystals which the wind had pushed into the clump of sedums (a moss-like plant) in the near-by flower bed. The soot just wouldn't wash off, and Mr. Cardinal forgot all about this disappointment.

Next he began feeling a bit more curious about the mysterious manna which the Junco was enjoying. He too pecked at something on the ground, but it certainly wasn't manna, not even manna-like. It was the driest dearest morsel which he had ever tasted. He tried again, with no better results.

Not to be out-witted, Mr. Cardinal scrutinized the modest gray bird once again. This time he saw it become a trampoline performer: it kicked back the snow-sifted leaves as it bounced a short distance from the ground; lighted gracefully in an upright position a short distance from its take-off; and picking up another morsel of something, swallowed it with the greatest of satisfaction.

Mr. Cardinal just couldn't understand what the Junco was enjoying. "Oh, well," he chipped to himself, "I'll have to try something else." He was wise enough to know that he couldn't perform on a leafy trampoline even if he were willing to practice. He was almost too heavy and too clumsy. And he couldn't find any of that manna.

Mr. Cardinal, in his own dignified manner, moved to the tuft of brown and green sedum stems protruding from the snow. He jerked a brown bud off and chewed it in his strong red bill. Finding no seed there, he dropped the crushed bud upon the snow and tried a green bud. Nothing there again! After testing several more buds, with the same negative results, he gave his Junco companion a last glance and then flew up to the near-by feeder full of sunflower seeds.

"I should have known better," he confessed. "I can't be a Junco with a white bill, but the Junco can't be a red bird with a red bill either. And there is plenty of food for both of us and a place for each of us in this winter world." And he sang his favorite message, "Good cheer! Good cheer!"

Hated Cows

One time there was a man and he didn't like cows. He hated cows.

When he saw a cow he called them names. One day he called a cow a name and the cow hit him far away.

He landed right in a big mud-puddle.

He sat there until he forgot that he hated cows, and he liked them.

No Hair

One time there was a man. He had no hair.

So, he went to the barber one day. Then he said, "Give me a hair cut."

"But Mr., you don't have any hair," said the barber. "I don't," said the man.

WHAT COMES NEXT?

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

While the investigation into the Apollo 1 disaster has caused a delay of six months to a year and a half in United States Apollo space flights the first manned moon landing should still be made by 1970. So scientists and congressmen are wondering what to do next.

The President's Science Advisory Committee recently offered a choice of three answers to this problem in a report called, "The Space Program in the Post Apollo Period." These would range in cost from $3.5 to $7 billion by mid 1972.

In all these programs the committee recommends that manned and unmanned space programs be tied more closely together. Unmanned satellites will continue to watch weather on earth while the manned spacecraft concentrate on astronomy. Meanwhile Voyager probes will be used to make soft landings on Mars and Venus and possibly even a probe of Jupiter.

Should Share Data

The committee also suggested that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Air Force should share their experiments made in their planned long duration flights. NASA is planning to send three astronauts on orbital flights of up to a month in its orbital workshop, shown above, starting next year. The Air Force is planning to send two-man crews on similar month-long missions in its Manned Orbital Laboratory (MOL) some time in 1970.

Moon flights would also continue after the first landing at the rate of one or two missions a year. The present Apollo system will only allow exploration of areas around the moon's equator. So the committee recommends improving the system to extend the moon exploration into other areas between 1975 and 1980.

Cheapest Plan

In the cheapest plan proposed by the committee (Program A) manned interplanetary flights would be put off indefinitely. The investigations would be carried out by unmanned Voyager spacecraft. Meanwhile the Apollo Applications program would concentrate on earth or orbital flights lasting up to a year.

Program B is about the same but would include development of a permanent space station and more Voyager explorations.

Program C would concentrate on landing a man on Mars by the earliest possible date. Voyager flights to Jupiter in 1972 and Mars and Venus in 1975 would pave the way. All the Apollo earth orbital flights would be concentrated on developing equipment for the Mars flight and training astronauts for the trip. Just as Gemini prepared for the manned moon flights. However, no specific deadline, like the one for the moon landing, would be set for the manned Mars flight.

Part 2: Freedom Important

"But we need young men in the ranks today, Gramps," Dad said with a tolerant smile.

And for the sake of democracy there must be freedom of speech and the right to choose the candidates of our choice.

"That's what I've been telling that pigheaded Healy!" Gramps exploded. "Then he had the nerve to say I'm..."

Mom silenced him with a stern look and gave Dad an icy stare. "I think we've had quite enough politics for the day," she said with firmness. "And with the Easter season close at hand this is no time to quarrel with our neighbors. Especially an old friend like Mr. Healy."

Things quieted down then and the conversation around the table drifted into peaceful channels. Then later in the living room, after Gramps had turned in for the night, Dad laid his paper aside and looked at Mom. "Billy tells me that Gramps really tangled with old Mr. Healy, today," he said with an amused grin. "Maybe it's well that you acted as referee and stopped the fight before it may have been committed, eh?"

"Yeah, Gramps and old Mr. Healy would make most fighters look like pikers," Billy chimed in with a laugh. "Even make Joe Louis run and hide, maybe."

"This is no laughing matter," Mom said with a toss of her head. "And speaking for myself, I'll be glad when this election thing is over and done with! Gramps and Mr. Healy were such close friends before this childish business about some candidate or another came between them. Now they're bitter enemies."

"Yeah, always playing checkers or taking off together on a big fishing trip or something," Billy added. "Now Gramps says he won't even ride to the polls in the same car with Mr. Healy on election day."

Our Lord In Heaven

Leaves rustling in the trees,
Flowers dancing in the breeze,
Dandelions being kissed by bees,
The rain had washed things sparkling clean.

The nicest day I'd ever seen,
The clouds were white and blue.
Our Lord In Heaven must be true

To give this day to me and you

April Fool Backward Party

By Christine Hembrough

Well, it looks as though spring and April are almost here! Thank goodness. And what better way is there to start the spring off with than a bang?

Soldiers Marching

Soldiers marching off to war
Mothers weeping at the door.
Children asking just once more,
"Why are they going off to war?"

Mothers answering, "Because my son,
They are going off, the war's begun."

So listen now, while you are young,
Your war has not yet begun.

Let There Be Peace

By Mary Pence Claywell

Come ye Nations, let us go up to "THE MOUNTAIN OF THE LORD."

O Nations, Christ Jesus Who died on The Cross...

Your warped and scarred souls to redeem,
Is calling you now, who-ever you are,
To come with your sorrows to Him:

Far-away, there's a Land, awaiting all men...

The weary, the weak, the oppressed, only come to THE FOUNTAIN, and wash yourselves clean.

And the Saviour will do all the rest:
The Power of the BLOOD, swings open the gates,
And the FOUNTAIN WASHES WHITER than SNOW.

And the Lovely Lord Jesus Who DIED FOR US ALL,
Can straighten THE NATIONS below:

He can Thwart sinful Rulers, and Lift up the Just...

Yet, Our Saviour with MERCY is Blessed,
And He's Calling the sinfulest ones to come too,
The same... as He's Calling the rest:

O Nations of Earth, there is NO other way,
And Rulers, there ONLY IS ONE

Who is ABLE to HEAL up the WOUNDS of the Lands,
Being made by your SINS, and your GUNS:

And He's COMING AGAIN, Earth's SAVED, to receive, Who REPENT and abide by HIS WILL,
But NO ONE UNWASHED, by THE BLOOD OF THE LAMB,

Call Pittsfield Home

Julie Ann Hammitt

Angela Ann Hammitt

PITTSFIELD — Two little Korean girls received new names, as well as a new home, when they moved recently to Pittsfield. Adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hammitt of rural Pittsfield, four-year-old Moon Ja is now Julie Ellen and one-year-old Mi Ja will answer to Angela Ann.

The Hammitts first heard of Moon Ja Hawng through their daughter Judy, who went to Korea and Japan with a group of young people from the Prince of Peace Corps to do missionary work.

While in Seoul, Judy met two missionaries who were caring for the older child until she could be adopted. Judy wrote her parents about the little girl and they contacted the missionaries about adopting the child but were told it would be impossible. During an exchange of letters, the missionaries wrote the Hammitts about the younger child, Mi Ja Bai, who had been left on their doorstep.

After many letters and delays the Hammitts were successful in getting adoption approval for both children from the immigration center in Chicago on Dec. 28, 1966. They received word their new daughters would arrive in San Francisco, California on Feb. 24. Mrs. Hammitt met the plane last month that brought the children from Korea to San Francisco and the three flew to the St. Louis airport.

The Hammitts have five children of their own, Bob Jr. of Flint, Michigan; Mrs. Judy Warupa of Tuscola, Texas; Bill, Janice and Jeff, at home. They also have two foster children, John Patterson, a sophomore at York College, Nebraska, and Larry Wington, a seventh grader.

Mr. Hammitt is a field representative for the Mississippi Valley Production Credit Association.

Mound Woman's Club Meets At Logue Farm

Mrs. E. W. Logue was hostess to members of the Mound Woman's Country club at her home, Welcome Manor, for the March meeting. Mrs. Henry Mason was assistant hostess.

Mrs. Harlan Mason conducted the business session. Reports were heard from the secretary, treasurer and special committees. Members responded to roll with their favorite time of spring.

Mrs. A. J. Stewart, program chairman, presented Mrs. Donald Richardson, who gave a most informative and challenging program on Water, Soil and Food Conservation. She stressed importance of people acquainting themselves with the many fallacies connected with care-free methods of living now enjoyed by all which might become a serious problem by the year 2000.

Delicious refreshments, in keeping with the Easter season, were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Household Club Entertained At Hardesty Home

Mrs. George Hardesty entertained the Jacksonville Household Science club March 21st at her home on Book Lane with Mrs. Stuart Lippert assisting.

Mrs. L. Vernon Caine, president, welcomed members and guests and presented Mrs. Hugh Green, program chairman, who introduced Mrs. Harry Hammitt and Mrs. Harold Schmalz who gave the program.

Easter Customs and Cooking with Eggs was the most appropriate topic. Eggs are the symbol of Easter, of rebirth and resurrection. Customs of several European countries were related. The Easter rabbit legend originated in Germany. The English introduced egg rolling on the lawn. After the Civil War the Bermuda Lily was developed for church decorating during the Easter season. Now we call the blossom the Easter Lily.

Mrs. Hammitt and Mrs. Schmalz displayed many lovely decorated eggs with significant symbols. They also presented several delicious dishes prepared from egg recipes, which were sampled by the members.

Dessert was served from an attractive tea table with Mrs. Caine and Mrs. Conover presiding.

East German Tells Of Chaos When The Third Reich Fell

EDITOR'S NOTE — Hans-Georg Henke is 39 and balding, and has a comfortable home, a family and a job. But on that day in 1945 he was caught between two armies, the Russians and the Americans. He was just 16, and his world was collapsing, and he cried. Hans-Georg still remembers, "Hitler kaput. Go home." The case history of an East German Communist.

By HUBERT J. EBB
FINKELSTEIN, East German (AP) — His face was flashed to the world, frozen for history in a photograph that showed clearly Hitler's Third Reich had ended.

The picture was of Hans-Georg Henke, then 16 years old, crying with a dirty face. He was capless, his blond hair rumpled. He seemed too small for the Wehrmacht great coat he wore. That was May 1, 1945.

"I did not realize that the picture was taken," he says now. "I was not captured yet. I think either a Soviet or Polish combat photographer got in among all those who were fleeing and took the picture. I did not know until after the war that I had been photographed."

Why was he crying? "The retreating German army was blowing up everything as it moved west. The Russians were attacking from the East. Everything around me was chaos. I thought it was the end of the world."

Henke is now 39. He is growing bald, and looks years older. He lives with his wife and their only child, Claudia, 9, in a comfortably furnished apartment in a postwar housing area. He is a member of the Communist party.

"I joined the party in 1945," he said. "Right after I was released by the Russians in the fall."

When he got home to Finsterwalde, where he was born, he had a wounded foot and typhus and was an orphan. He had turned 17 on May 18.

Before his fate was sealed on May 11, when he was finally captured by the Russians, he had walked 60 miles trying to reach American lines.

"For me," he said, "when the war ended, I was reborn. I was sick of everything that had happened."

His father, Henke recalled, died in 1938. "He was not a Communist, but friendly to the party." His mother died in 1944, leaving Hans-Georg and a younger brother alone. An older brother already was in the war.

All three boys survived and live in Finsterwalde, an industrial town of about 30,000 some 60 miles south of Berlin.

Only two houses were damaged in Finsterwalde, Henke declared, and he started working in 1946. He now is the administrative representative of the doctor who runs the state medical program in the county.

Previously, Henke was administrator of the local hospital. After his mother died, he stated, "a local man got me drafted in the military in the fall of 1944 so I would be taken care of. I went into the air force and an anti-aircraft unit. I think that helped me in the long run. I had stayed out of the Hitler Youth and my becoming a soldier kept me out of Nazi affairs."

He was first assigned to a unit near Magdeburg with a lot of boys and old men, and some girls manning searchlights. "We are bombed out and the dead lay all over," he said. From there he was sent through Berlin, witnessed more bombing destruction, and finally to the Oder front near Stettin. His unit was equipped with 88mm cannon.

Henke told this story: "The Russians attacked and we started retreating with them always about a kilometer behind. Finally we were in Tessen near Rostock. There were five of us left from a company of 120. It was dawn on May 1. We were in a barn sleeping."

"Then I heard the Russian tanks coming. They began firing machine guns. I had picked up a bike along the way but had to leave it. We fled for our lives."

"We reached an area where refugees, soldiers and everybody were all thrown together. Everything around us was being destroyed. I groveled in the dirt to find refuge. Sometime while we were there the picture was taken."

"The other four left were all men, including the battery commander, a first lieutenant. He asked 'Well, boys? What do you want? There are the Russians. Or should we try to reach the Americans? They are 200 kilometers (120 miles) away.'"

"We all voted to try and reach the Americans. We walked eight nights covering about 100 kilometers. We were all wounded. I had a grenade splinter in the foot. I had no shoes, just rags. Everybody had whisky in their canteens to try and build a little nerve. Then on the ninth day we risked walking in the daylight."

"Right away the Russians spotted us. 'Hitler kaput,' they said. 'Go home.' We turned back toward Berlin and walked another two days. Then we were captured. The Russians gave the younger ones among us bread and bacon."

The retelling of his story clearly excited Henke. His green-brown eyes glistened. He chainsmoked.

The toughest postwar period for him, Henke declared, was right after the war when the Germans in the West were getting food packages. "In comparison to those days," he stated, "we can live in comfort now. Remembering makes it satisfying, that we have got what we have."

Henke showed a number of pictures he keeps, including the famous one, and another of half his school class in a big canoe.

"There are only three from the group left," he said. "All the others were killed. And last year in a Moscow hotel where I was staying with a delegation I saw one of the other two. He lives in West Germany now. He did not recognize me. I went up to him and said, 'It's me, Hans-Georg.' Then he remembered me."

Despite all that has happened, does Henke still hope for German reunification?

"Yes," he answered, "I hope for reunification."

English And Canadian Ways Of Producing Pork Told At U. I.

A TETHERED SOW

Individual care for tethered sows and a rigid pre-weaning routine for baby pigs are key management practices on the Middle Culham hog farm near Oxford, England.

Farm manager Alex MacNair outlined the farm's management program at the annual Illinois Swine Growers' Day. The farm produces about 12,000 hogs each year and averages 9.1 pigs weaned per litter.

After breeding, sows are tied with a short chain in tubular steel stalls where they are fed twice daily. Sows move into farrowing crates after 112 days of gestation.

Pigs are farrowed and finished in the same building. MacNair said he tries to have 30 to 35 sows in a building farrowing within 7 to 10 days.

Fixed Schedule
Workers clip teeth, dock tails and balance litters when baby pigs are one day old. When the pigs are two days old, the sow moves out of the farrowing crate and the pen is divided into half for the sow and half for the pigs. Baby pigs receive iron injections when they are three days old.

All pigs are weighed and cast-rated when they are between 10 and 21 days old. They receive creep feed from 10 to 33 days of age.

One week before weaning, MacNair's staff takes anal swabs randomly from pigs to check for serious disease-causing organisms. Pigs that need medication receive it at weaning time.

Feed Increased
After weaning, pigs start receiving their feed twice daily.

Top Angus Bull Commands $840 At Spring Sale

A large crowd attended the annual "Stars on Parade" auction held at the Carrollton sales barn by the Illinois Valley Angus Cattle association. The bulls brought an average of $420; cows, $336; bred heifers, $339, and open heifers, $275.

The top bull of the day, T. & T. Bardolmer 50, consigned by Laverne Tuetken & Sons of Jerseyville, was bought by Liberty Prairie Farms and Maurice Hull of Edwardsville for $840.

W. W. Legate & Sons of Grafton bought Eileenmere Tooth Acres 45 from Dr. William Hentze of Greenville for $550.

The No. 1 cow was consigned by Jack Wock of Jerseyville and was bought by Don Huff of Carlinville for $560. Her heifer calf went to Wilbert Joyce of Greenville for $225.

The second cow-calf combination was consigned by Thomas and Helen Handlin of Eldred. The cow went to William Klaus & Son of Carlinville for $460 and Maurice Hull of Edwardsville bought the heifer calf for $185.

The Handlins bought the top open heifer, consigned by Melvins Angus Farms of Greenville, for $400.

The heifer given away at the close of the sale was won by Mrs. Helen Egelhoff of Jerseyville.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

TUG OF WAR OVER SOYBEANS

Soybean prices reflect a tug-of-war between farmers and buyers. Many farmers are pulling (or rather holding) for higher prices. Apparently, buyers have sufficient supplies, so that they have not been forced to bid up prices.

The supply situation is not clear. The USDA reported stocks on hand January 1 at 725 million bushels — 106 million more than the amount on hand a year earlier. But it was also about 23 million more than we would have expected — from the size of the 1966 crop, and known use and exports.

Exports and domestic use of soybeans have been a little larger than last year. However, they have not increased as much as was expected earlier.

From September 1 through March 3, inspections for export totaled 148 million bushels, only 1 percent more than a year before. Exports may have been restricted this year by prices, which averaged about 25 cents a bushel higher than the year before, until February.

Exports of soybean oil are also down — about 20 percent. Exports of soybean meal are down about 13 percent.

Much Competition
Soybean products must sell in competition with products from many other countries.

Soybean oil competes with peanut oil, palm oil, sunflower oil, cottonseed oil, rapeseed oil, olive oil, corn oil, fish oil, butyrol, lard, beef fat, and many other fats and oils. Supplies of many of these products seem to be more abundant than last year, though the whole picture is complicated and continuously changing. Total world production of fats and oils is over 37 million tons, of which soybeans provide only about one-sixth.

Likewise, soybean meal competes with many products used for livestock and poultry feeds. These include cottonseed meal, linseed meal, peanut meal, packinghouse by-products, flour mill by-products, alfalfa meal, fish meal, feed grains and urea. These products are produced in many countries.

In the first half of this marketing year (September through February), domestic crushings of soybeans apparently totaled about 273 million bushels, 2 percent more than in the same time a year before. During the fall and most of the winter, processing margins were smaller than one year before. But more recently, they were about the same as last year.

Many Under Loan
Farmers have placed a record amount of soybeans under price-support loans. By the end of January, they had put 136 million bushels under loan, 60 percent more than the year before. The loan rate (averaging $2.50 a bushel) has been 20 to 30 cents below market prices. But farmers save money on interest costs, since the interest rates on the price-support loans are lower than on most other loans.

Everyone seems to agree that the carryover next fall will be

At Peoria Conference

County directors and managers of FS Services, Inc., met in Peoria March 15 to discuss current business trends and long range capital requirements for the farmer-owned farm supply cooperative. The discussion centered on plans for a $43 million capital expansion program affecting all segments of the system.

Bureau Leaders Meet In Mason

Farm Bureau leaders of District 10 met Monday in Havana.

Representing Morgan county were Cary Strang, president of the Morgan County Farm Bureau, Robert Nickel, Paul S. Black, Ed Clayton, Dale Mawson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hem-brough, Merle Sayre, James Henderson, Richard Turner and John Chambers.

Gilbert Fricke of Tallula, district representative to the Illinois Agricultural association board, presided.

Principal topics discussed were ideas for policy development by seeking opinions of individual members and reports of the affiliated companies in the marketing field.

more than the 36 million bushels of old beans left on hand last September 1. But there is a great difference of opinion as to how much bigger the stocks will be. Forecasts range all the way from about 50 million to more than 100 million bushels. A substantial part of the carryover may be tied up under price-support resale loans. With a larger acreage in prospect for 1967, any major price improvement may depend upon prospects for the new crop.

FARMERS STUDY CONTRACT SALES

Contract selling of farm products was studied by Farm Bureau marketing committees of west central Illinois in Hillsboro Tuesday.

Attending the conference from Morgan county were Clyde York, chairman of the marketing committee; Paul S. Black, Roy E. Smith, Glenn Schone, Darryl Sayre and John Chambers.

Best evidence of a cultivated plant's origin is finding the place where ancestral forms still grow wild. The riddle of the watermelon's origin was solved when explorer David Livingstone discovered wild watermelons growing profusely in central Africa, the National Geographic says.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

A little more than lawns. Remember, fertilize twice; straight nitrogen or high nitrogen in the spring and a "complete" fertilizer in the fall. In early fall overspread thin areas: Sunny with straight blue grass, 1 lb. per 1,000 square feet. Shady with creeping red fescue at 1 1/2 lb. per 1,000 square feet.

Weed control — Good weed control is easiest if an annual fertilizer program is used to get a heavy stand of grass. September application of the amine form of 2, 4-D will get more complete kill of broad-leaved lawn weeds than an application at any other season of the year.

Crab grass is frequently a problem. First follow a good fertilizer program. Then if crab grass gets established a regular chemical program might be considered.

Remember that weed control by chemicals is only a supplement to a good fertilizer program. You need to have a good, healthy turf to take over in the spots where weeds are killed by chemicals.

Now you should

- ... Buy your garden seed.
- ... Enjoy the sunshine.
- ... Spend some time outdoors.
- ... Dress appropriately.
- ... Clean, paint and repair.
- ... Help Mom with spring cleaning.
- ... Fly a kite.

Spring is a delightful time of year with the earth giving to new life with the plants, new-born birds and animals of all kinds, all so joyful to observe.

Remember the events which we commemorate at Easter all through the year.

More doors are opened with "please" than with keys.

LAW on the farm

CAN A WIFE CONTRACT?

By common law when a man and woman married, they became as one. The "one" was the husband. He controlled his wife's person and property rights, was entitled to any money she might earn from outside employment, and represented her in suits and actions at law.

In Illinois and other states these common-law principles have been replaced by statutes giving women equal property rights with men. Illinois law gives married women these rights:

— To own, purchase, sell, mortgage, or otherwise deal with her own personal and real property.

— To sue and to be sued without joining her husband with her.

— To defend in her own right if she and her husband are sued together.

— If she is deserted by her husband, to prosecute or defend in his name any actions he might have prosecuted or defended.

— To be immune from her husband's creditors except insofar as his obligations are for family expenses and the education of their children.

— To enter into contracts.

— To receive, use, and possess her own earnings, and sue for them in her own name, free from the interference of her husband or his creditors.

The law, however, does limit the right of husband and wife to contract with each other by providing that "neither husband nor wife shall be entitled to recover any compensation for any labor performed or services rendered for the other, whether in the management of property or otherwise." Interpreting this portion of the law, the courts have held that a wife is not entitled to compensation for nursing her husband during illness, nor is the husband entitled to compensation for labor performed on his wife's farm.

Some contracts must be in writing. Most contracts which a farm wife makes need not be in writing to be enforceable, but there are three important exceptions: (1) transfers of real estate and farm leases must be in writing; (2) a contract that is not to be performed within one year after it is made must be in writing; and (3) a contract to sell goods valued at $500 or more is enforceable only to the extent the buyer has accepted the goods, or for that part of the goods the buyer has paid for, or if the contract is in writing and signed.

A contract made by a wife is enforceable at law. If one party fails to carry out its terms, the other may sue for damages or, in some instances, may force the party who is not carrying out the terms to perform them. Forcing the performance of the terms is called specific performance.

Grange Assails Farm Policies As Parity Sinks To 1933 Level

WASHINGTON—The National Grange has registered complaints against two government economic reports which apparently sanction the stabilization of farm prices at a low level.

Grange Legislative Representative Harry L. Graham referred to the Economic Report of the President and the annual report of the Council of Economic Advisors in letters to the Joint Economic Committee of the Congress.

Graham said the reports reveal the discrepancies between the returns farmers receive and those received by other segments of the economy. At the same time, the letter states, these reports "appear to find satisfaction from the reduction or stabilization of farm prices while making various rationalizations for the increase of non-farm profits and wages, which are ultimately transferred to the farmer in terms of his cost of production."

The tables in the reports, Graham said, show that no aspect of farm income has kept pace with the non-farm segment of the economy. The parity yardstick of economic equality has dropped to 74, the lowest point in 34 years.

Graham also took objection to the statement in the report of the Council of Economic Advisors that prices of farm products and some raw materials had leveled off.

Questions Intent
"In fact," Graham said, "they had declined by some 11 percent. The fact that the report used this to decide there were signs of progress makes the farm sector raise a question about the intent of the fiscal policy of the government."

The farm spokesman said that "implied or stated approval" of the desirability of reducing farm prices is clear again in the report's statement that rising prices necessary to attract or hold labor in such products as dairy are "the exception rather than the rule."

Graham said the reports seem to say that there cannot be a significant decline in retail food prices unless there is an unusually large decline in farm prices.

"If stable retail prices are the objective of the Council, then it necessarily follows that reduced farm prices are an essential part of this equation," Graham charged.

Guidposts Ignored
According to the Grange leader, this action of the government in relation to farm prices violated 1962 Council guidposts which say that prices should, "in the interest of equity," rise faster for those segments lagging behind the general economy.

"Not only was this not allowed in the case of farm prices," Graham said, "but they were in fact deliberately depressed."

Sam Hoots, Bluffs high school sophomore, won the Section 1 Future Farmers of America prepared public speaking contest held recently at Winchester high school. The title of his winning address was "A Farm Background is Nothing to Be Wasted."

Section 15 is composed of vocational agriculture departments in Macoupin, Grecco, Jersey, Calhoun, Morgan and Scott counties.

Hoots will repeat the speech in the district contest to be held in Beardstown April 12.

ELIZUR WOLCOTT
He Ran Second

A hundred years ago today politics held the center of the local stage. In February, 1867, the Illinois legislature in its collective wisdom decreed Jacksonville a city, no longer to be directed by a board of trustees (the city fathers), but by a duly elected mayor and aldermen.

To qualify as a city Jacksonville had to extend its boundaries. The original town measured a square mile, a half-mile in each direction from the center of the square. The limits were set at one mile in each direction, thus putting many corn fields and pastures under the benign rule of municipal government.

The election was set for March 31. The Democrats had nothing to do with it, because the previous fall the Republicans had rolled up such impressive majorities in the city that they had overcome the solid Democratic vote in the county to elect two county officials, a most unheard thing in Morgan county.

So the Democrats decided to let the Republicans scrap it out among themselves. And this they did.

East Side vs. West Side

The regular Republican convention nominated a well balanced ticket headed by John Mathers, a very substantial citizen who lived in a palatial brick residence on East State street, near the railroad tracks.

A few days later the Republicans who didn't quite agree got together with a couple of Democrats and nominated the People's party, headed by Elizur Wolcott, who lived in a very palatial frame house on West College avenue.

Mathers was a native of Ireland, but had come to Jacksonville after a short stay in Lexington, Ky. He opened up a brick factory, worked hard and prospered.

Wolcott was a native of Connecticut, came here with his wealthy father, was superintendent of maintenance for the Toledo, Wabash and Western railroad, which must have been a pretty cushy job, was considered a leader "of the west side swellhead crowd," and had the finest library in town.

Both men were well liked. Both were original Republicans, having carried the torch for Fremont in 1856. Both had been strong anti-slavery men; both had been connected with the underground railroad and Elizur's father, Elihu, was the first president of the Illinois Anti-Slavery society.

He Built Centenary

Mathers was a strong Methodist. His father was named Wesley in honor of John Wesley, who had been entertained by Grandfather Mathers when Wesley visited Ireland. John had a brother named Wesley and John, in 1867, was the chairman of the building committee for the new church of the East Jacksonville circuit. It was built under his watchful eye, named Centenary, and still stands proudly.

Wolcott was a pillar in the Presbyterian church, Jacksonville Female Academy and Illinois College.

So, you can see right away, that the battle lines were drawn — and the fray would be immense.

The Republican slate was better drawn, with an equal division between East and West. The People's ticket was overloaded with West Enders.

Law, Order, Economy

Both men promised strict economy in government, public improvements, enforcement of the laws which forbade liquor saloons and bad girls within the city limits, and greater financial support for Union Fire Company No. 1, a volunteer department that had shown its muscle two years earlier by electing its own slate of town trustees, and was thus to be treated with the highest respect by any candidate.

But there had to be an issue, and it came up early in the campaign.

When Joseph Duncan died in 1844 he gave his front yard to the town of Jacksonville for park purposes. The town hadn't done anything about it at all except let it grow up in brush. By 1867 the estate hadn't been settled yet and the heirs, pointing out that the town hadn't lived up to its part of the bargain, tried to regain title to the park.

One of the signers of the petition to restore the property was Elizur Wolcott and his running mate for city clerk was J. O. King, one of the heirs, and superintendent of the gas company.

Beware! Beware! This was all the Republicans needed. Col. George Price Smith of the JOURNAL uncorked his ink bottle and went after his old friends, Wolcott and King, charging them with nearly every crime known to mankind. He shed tears that they would contemplate giving away the park, in effect stealing from the new city even before they were elected, and pondered what they would do if elected.

He hinted broadly that the franchise of the gas company — "that soulless corporation" — would undoubtedly be dissolved under the change from town to city government and that if the Republicans got in charge everybody's gas bill would be cut away down.

Only one man on the People's ticket won: Robert Osborne for alderman in the first ward. He was a very well liked livestock trader and he and his brother had just finished building the city's pride, a fine three-story building at the northeast corner of the square, now occupied by Walker's furniture store.

Mathers beat Wolcott by 173 votes, 697 to 524. The others elected were: For city clerk — Harrison O. Cassell, young attorney, over J. O. King, 370 majority.

For city marshal — Ellis M. Allen, blacksmith and wagon maker, over James Mitchell, the town's bill poster, 79 majority.

For assessor and collector — A. N. McDonald, insurance agent, over Samuel Markoe of Markoe & Rowland, general merchandise, west side of the square, 212 majority.

For street commissioner — Charles Rockwell, livery stable proprietor, over James O. Hamilton, dry goods clerk, 453 majority.

For city attorney — William L. English, young Republican attorney, over William H. Barnes, young Democratic attorney, 272 majority.

The Alderman Races

Chosen for aldermen were: First ward — Osborne over William Bacon, brickyard employee, majority, 16 votes.

Second ward — Charles Howard, brickmaker, over James Butler, brickmaker, majority 100. Howard worked in the old Mathers yard near "The Stone Bridge" east of town and Butler worked at a yard at the northwest edge of town.

Third ward — David M. Simmons, "gentleman" over Alex Platt, bricklayer, 79 majority.

Fourth ward — Alexander Edgmon, brickmaker, unopposed, 293 votes.

Charles Rand, who was perennially unemployed, wanted to run for alderman in the fourth ward and was overjoyed when Gen. Murray McConnell, "the old muley horse of the Democracy," agreed to nominate him.

And McConnell did nominate him, in these words: "I nominate Charles Rand for a damned fool in the fourth ward, and promise I won't vote for him."

This made Charles so darned sore that he withdrew from the race.

I see this story is getting away too long, so I'll take up the rest of it next week.

— Cecil Tendick

HUMORS

of the day

March, 1867

Josh Billings says: "I always advise short sermons, especially on a hot Sunday. If a man can't strike it in boring forty minutes, he has either got a poor gimlet, or he is boring in the wrong place."

A thrifty young man got married to a young Irish lass, to the horror of his mother and sisters, but defended himself with the following logic: "If I marry an American girl, I must have an Irish girl to take care of her, and I cannot afford to support both."

Sidney Smith being ill, his physician advised him to "take a walk each morning on an empty stomach." "Upon whose?" asked he.

An old lady inquired at one of the railway stations what time the 7:45 train would start, and was told at quarter to eight. "Bless me," she exclaimed, "you are always changing the time on this line."

FOREIGN

March, 1867

The English newspapers are again finding fault with the dispatches sent over the Atlantic cable. They complain that they seem intended more for the stock market than for the public. The same complaints can be made here with some force.

The Princess of Wales has given birth to what the physicians in attendance, and the papers who mentioned it, will persist in calling "a princess." At last accounts the mother and child were doing well.

The Papal Government has made large purchases of wheat at Leghorn, in order to supply cheap bread to the poor of Rome. It seems like helping them, but then the funds to do it are taken from them by taxes, still the plan is better than doing nothing.

March, 1867

It is calculated that $100,000 a year are spent by the fifty or sixty thousand Americans traveling to Europe, and it is suggested wittily that as Congress is now endeavoring to doctor up the finances of the country, had it not better look to this free locomotion, which is really free trade under another form, and stop it ere it is too late?

Despite the fears of the timid and the threats of the designing, gold has continued to fall in value since the decided action of Congress. Remove the element of uncertainty from the future, and things will settle down to where they should be.

A cock-fight in New Jersey has excited great attention among the fancy. Some of the papers devote more space to it than they have to some of the battles in South America.

The Freedmen have voted at Alexandria, Virginia. About one thousand of them exercised the right of suffrage; though this innovation shocks some of the ultra-conservative, yet the world still revolves on its axis, and the seasons appear to advance at their accustomed pace.

There has been a riot in San Francisco, in which the Irish laborers attacked the Chinese. The whole affair seems to be a disgraceful repetition of the same spirit, by the same class, which produced the riots of this city, a low and ignorant disregard for the rights of others, based upon the prejudice of color, the meanest feeling to which the human breast is capable.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: PUBLIC MEETING — A meeting of the citizens of Jacksonville will be held at the court House, to-morrow night, for the purpose of taking steps to raise contributions of grain and provisions for the relief of the starving women and children of the south. We learn that an independent movement to this end has been made in each of the churches of the city. A single peck of meal contributed may save a human life.

We notice that Hackett & Co. have opened up their clothing store at their new stand in the middle room of the new Marble Block.

The Ayers and Metcalf case in the circuit court was decided on Saturday last, the jury returning a verdict in favor of the bank. In a former trial of the same case a verdict was returned for Metcalf. The case was taken to the supreme court.

Ayers and sent back for a new trial, on the ground of erroneous instructions to the jury. The suit was brought by the bank on a claim of $14,000, $11,000 of which Metcalf claimed to have paid by deposit for which he had received no credit.

The rich man and property owner in Springfield.

Who makes money from the tax you will have to pay to build new county buildings in Virginia? The rich man and property owner in Virginia.

Is it better to tax yourselves to build up School Houses in your midst that improve your own property, or pay the same for County buildings in Virginia to benefit a few rich men there, who should hang their heads in shame for asking it?

From the Carrollton Gazette: The unendurable mud prevents people from the country coming to town, so that business looks really dull.

Andras Hereford

Tops Illinois Valley Sale

William Andras & Son of Manchester topped the recent Illinois Valley Hereford association sale held at the Carrollton sales pavilion. The 18 months old bull of Silver Domino breeding went to John Bissell of Grand Valley Ranch, Ada, Mich., for $650. Bissell also took several of the Andras females.

L. A. and D. D. Denby of Girard purchased the second top bull at $610. It was of Regent breeding and was consigned by Gene Bergschneider of New Berlin.

The No. 1 female was a two year old heifer with calf at side, sold by Roy Hettick of Greenfield and purchased by Howard Stevens of Loami for $400.

The entire sale averaged $330, with the top 10 averaging $520.

H. Irwin Davis of Jerseyville, association secretary, managed the sale, which was very well attended with nearly every seat taken.

Certified Soybean Seed Pays, Says Hackleman

Certified soybean seed outyielded non-certified seed by an average of five bushels per acre in the 1966 Illinois Five-Acre Yield Contest, says J. C. Hackleman, former U. I. Extension agronomist who is very well known by the farmers of this area. At present he is the public relations director of the Illinois Crop Improvement association, with headquarters in Urbana.

Hackleman writes that he feels contest data recently released "offers a strong testimonial to the superiority of certified seed."

The data shows that the 57 contestants who planted certified seed averaged 50.64 bushels per acre, while the 31 who used non-certified seed averaged 45.65.

Although various production factors, he continues, such as row widths, number of cultivations, and fertilizer treatment, varied among the contestants, the average figures indicate definite trends. Row widths, currently a topic of debate among soybean growers, were almost equal for both seed types, averaging 31.52 inches for the certified seed and 29.8 inches for the non-certified.

"Direct Comparisons"

In two instances the contest made possible direct comparisons between certified and non-certified seed of the same variety. The three contestants using certified Shelby seed had an average row width of 33.0 inches and an average yield of 56.24 bushels. Nine farmers planted non-certified Shelby soybeans, with an average row width of 30.1 inches and an average yield of 46.70 bushels.

Four contestants planting certified Clark seed with an average row width of 34.5 inches averaged 53.36 bushels per acre. The eight farmers who used non-certified Clark or Clark 63 seed averaged 29.1 bushels per acre.

Certified Wayne seed produced the first, third, and fourth place yields in the contest, with 70.98, 59.88, and 59.07 bushels per acre. The second-place yield of 62.19 bushels was produced with certified Clark seed. Highest yield for a non-certified variety was 58.86 bushels, produced from non-certified Harosoy.

Three In A Row

John Reiser, Jr., a Cass County farmer who produced the first-place yield of 70.98 bushels per acre, has won the Five-Acre Soybean Yield Contest for three consecutive years, each time using certified seed. He has compiled a three-year average yield of 75.72 bushels per acre, planting certified Harosoy in 1964 and certified Wayne in 1965 and 1966.

The Illinois Five-Acre Soybean Yield Contest, which was the source of the information, is sponsored annually by the Illinois Crop Improvement association in cooperation with the Illinois Cooperative Extension Service. Hackleman urges farmers to keep in mind the results of the contest when they buy their seed this spring, and to consider participating in the 1967 contest. Copies of the contest rules can be obtained from farm advisers or the Illinois Crop Improvement association.

UCLA And Dayton Capture 1st Round NCAA Triumphs

Flyers Upset NC 76-62, Bruins Roll

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Lew Alcindor, an intimidating tower, and daring, darting Mike Warren took unbeaten UCLA to a 73-58 triumph over seventh-ranked Houston Friday night and into the finals of the NCAA National Basketball Championships opposite upstart Dayton.

Deft Don May casually tossed in 34 points and led unranked Dayton to a 76-62 upset of fourth-ranked North Carolina in the first game of the semifinal doubleheader witnessed by 18,889 and a national television audience.

Alcindor, UCLA's 7-foot-1 1/2-inch sophomore phenomenon, and the 5-foot-10 Warren were the key figures in a first-half burst that put the top-ranked Bruins ahead to stay.

Houston, aided by the individual heroics of All-America Elvin Hayes, had a 19-18 lead before UCLA got started.

Then, as Houston Coach Guy Lewis nervously chewed on a white towel, UCLA ran off 10 straight points, outscored the Cougars 17-3 in one stretch, took a 35-22 lead and was ahead to stay.

The Bruins, 29-0 for the season and bidding to become only the fourth unbeaten major-college team in NCAA history, had a 39-28 halftime lead.

That put the Cougars out of it and they never were back in the ball game again.

Lynn Shackelford led the Bruins with 22 points while Alcindor finished with 19. The 6-foot-8 Hayes had 25 for Houston.

But it was the intimidating presence of the towering Alcindor under the Cougar boards, his rebounding, and his blocking of shots that forced Houston out of its pattern.

Warren, swift backcourt man, was the perfect complement. The only junior on UCLA's sophomore-dominated starting five, Warren was the key to the Bruins' fast break and disturbing full-court press, and served as floor general.

While Houston kept two of its three front-line men occupied guarding Alcindor, Warren and Lucius Allen calmly picked apart the Houston zone.

Shackelford and Warren each had four points and Alcindor two in the decisive 10-point burst midway in the first period.

Hayes stuffed in a rebound and Don Kruse added a free throw before UCLA reeled off seven more consecutive points. That gave the Bruins a 13-point lead and outlasted Houston never got closer than eight again.

Houston now has a 26-4 record. Obviously disturbed by Alcindor's presence under the baskets, the Cougars hit only 12 of 41 first-half field goal attempts for a .293 percentage.

Mound Staff Holds Key To Rout 9

An inexperienced pitching staff could well hold the key to this season's Routh baseball club. Prospects of a sound hitting attack is expected to hold up the offensive end of the Rockets' campaign.

The Routh nine will open a 17-game (most games in several years) next Friday when the Rockets entertain Pleasant Plains. Routh plays all its baseball games at Nichols Park.

Coach Fred Curtis lists sophomore Loyd Krumlauf, freshman Ken Cors, seniors Joe Proffitt and Chuck McNeely and junior Tom Jordan as his pitching staff.

Others on the 12-man squad are seniors Greg Yording at first base and Ken McGinnis, third base and outfield; juniors Bob Durocher, catcher, Dave Bergschneider, outfield, and Mike Costa, outfield; sophomore John Costa, catcher, and freshman Ed Tighe, shortstop.

Curtis says of the approaching season, "Our weakness may be pitching, because we have very little experience there, and we have only 12 players out. Our hitting could be tough."

Gibson Hopes For Another 20-Win Season

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Strong-armed Bob Gibson hopes to continue a pleasant progression—if he can get over his first inning problems.

The hard throwing St. Louis Cardinal right-hander has won 20 or more games the last two seasons. If he wins 20 this year, he will be the first Redbird to do so since Mort Cooper managed the feat three years running, 1942-44.

"Twenty-two would be very nice," said Gibson, whose record for the last six years is 13, 15, 18, 19, 20 and 21 wins.

"My problem now," Gibson added during the Cards' day off, "is to overcome the first inning difficulty which seems to trouble a lot of starting pitchers."

"I've warmed up for as long as a half hour and as little as 10 minutes. I've even interrupted my warmup. Against the Twins Thursday, I warmed up for 20 minutes and they didn't score in the first inning because it turned out I had better stuff out there than I had on the

The 30-year-old Gibson is optimistic about his chances of winning 20 games this year. He says his arm feels fine. "I'm very much encouraged because there was no fun pitching with so much discomfort last year," he explained.

Part of a starting pitcher's arm problems are mental, Gibson believes. "Making 35 to 40 starts a season, there are times when I don't feel mentally keyed up and properly concentrated when I go out to the mound. But there is no pattern to the physical inability to get untangled."

"But if I get by the first inning, I've won a big battle toward pitching a complete game and victory."

Wooden Chosen Coach Of Year

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — John Wooden, coach of UCLA's nationally top-ranked Bruins, was named Coach of the Year Friday by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

The presentation was made at the annual award banquet of the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Clarence Gaines, coach at Winston Salem State College, was selected as the college division coach of the year. Winston Salem State won the NCAA college division championship and finished with a 28-1 record.

Gaines was unable to be present and his award was accepted by Marshall Emory of Howard.

Alvin F. (Doggie) Julian of Dartmouth, president of the coaches' group, was named to the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Basketball Award for distinguished service to the game. Julian suffered a stroke in December and his award was accepted by Dave Gavitt of Dartmouth.

"I wouldn't be here except for the players," said Wooden, whose team is unbeaten at 28-0 and has been top-ranked all season.

"I also have to give a lot of credit to Jack Donahue," Donahue, now coach at Holy Cross, was the high school coach of Lew Alcindor, UCLA's 7-foot-11 sophomore who earlier had been named Player of the Year.

Grid Cardinals Ink 10 Rookies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The signing of 10 rookies, including two fourth round draft choices, was announced Friday by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Signed were Mike Barnes, a 6-foot-3, 205-pound defensive back from Arlington State, and Andy Bowling, a 6-2, 230-pound linebacker from Virginia Poly.

Barnes is 22, Bowling 21. The Cardinals got the extra fourth round draft choice in a trade with the Green Bay Packers.

Also signed were 10th round draft choice Laverne Barrs, a 6-0, 180-pound defensive back from Furman, and Ed Marconetti, a 6-0, 260-pound guard from Lamar Tech, drafted in the eleventh round and Bob Duncan, 6-3, 240-pound offensive tackle from West Texas State.

The other five signed were free agents. They are punter Pat Hogan, 5-11, 190 pounds, from Southwest Missouri State; Dick Paul, 6-4, 260-pound offensive tackle from UCLA; Alabama linebacker Wayne Cook, 6-1, 210 pounds; fullback Harold Moore, 6-1, 210, of Alabama; and Billy Nelson, a 6-3, 235-pound tackle from South Carolina.

ST. LOUIS infielder Jerry Buchek finds himself under the watchful eye of manager Red Schoendienst in St. Petersburg, Fla. With the boss around, there's no goofing off.

DATeline FLORIDA — Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers says now he was misquoted as planning to retire in a year or two. "I'm looking for security," he says. "Way I feel now, I could pitch five more years, barring injury. I checked into camp at my lowest weight in years."

First genuine spring phenom is Gary Nolan of Oroville, Calif., and the Cincinnati Reds, who struck out six men in one three-inning stint. He's an 18-year-old pitcher who got a $65,000 bonus last summer as the Reds' No. 1 draft choice. He needed the money—there's already a Gary Jr., age 1 1/2.

Tommy Helms, last year's National League Rookie of the Year, rooms with Pete Rose, the man he shoved off second in the Cincinnati Reds' game of musical bases this spring. Tommy played third last season.

Actually, his position is shortstop, but Cincy's already fortified there with Leo Cardenas, who's regarded as the best in the league. Back in 1963, the Reds were planning to bring both Helms and Rose up to their second-base combination and peddle Cardenas, but Tommy was a spring holdout and muffed his chance, while Rose became rookie of all year, and Leo solidified himself at short.

Why there has to be a spot in the lineup for Helms: He struck out only 31 times in 542 at-bats last year, and went all through high school without striking out.

Tommy Davis, the former Dodger outfielder, is expected to hit .350 this year for the New York Mets. That's how well he's adjusted to his new uniform. Tommy was on the golf course at Montebello, Calif., with former teammate Willie Davis when he heard about the trade. They'd just finished the first nine. Tommy refuses to reveal his score on the back nine.

Dodger relief star Phil Regan likes the idea to National League batters claiming he throws a spitter. "I even wet my fingers," he admits, "—of course, I wipe 'em off—just to get them thinking I throw it."

Regan's reasoning: "You want to keep the batters edge, to break their concentration. A lot of them stay in there and never step out of the box. The idea of a spitter makes 'em think. I remember Al Kaline (Tigers) telling me that every time he faced Lew Burdette, he had the spitter in the back of his mind. With two strikes, he was always looking for it, waiting for the ball to drop—even though Burdette might be throwing just a fast straight one."

Williams, the youngest manager in the American League at 37, hopes to rebuild the Sox around the men who helped him win two consecutive Governor's Cups in the minors at Toronto.

"I am optimistic about the talent on this club," said Williams. "I think we are even younger than Kansas City's team. We are dealing with young guys we have handled in the minors. If I didn't have them at Toronto, Eddie Popowski (third base coach) had them in Pittsburgh or Bobby Doerr (first base coach) instructed them in the minors."

Williams is determined to be the boss. He has eliminated the job of captain, a post held by Carl Yastrzemski last year. He has set weight limits for everybody with a warning that those who don't shape up will be left at the Ocala, Fla., minor league camp.

No Closed Meetings
A year ago the Red Sox players held meetings from which Billy Herman, then the manager, was excluded. Williams has taken steps to guard against any recurrence.

Williams is stressing basics in an attempt to eliminate the errors that made the club last in fielding last year. He also hopes to cut down on the base running mistakes that cost the Sox so many runs.

"We were dormant as far as speed on the bases was concerned. We had it but we never used it. Everybody apparently was waiting until they started to tattoo that wall in left. We'll hit and run more, use the squeeze and the sacrifice. We can't afford to wait."

The pitching staff, which had the poorest earned run average, 3.92 in the league last season, is Williams' big problem.

Morehead Already Gone
Dave Morehead, one of the sore arm cases of last year, already has been sent down to Toronto. Unless Dennis Bennett, 3.31, and Jerry Stephenson, 2.5, show complete recovery they may follow.

Jose Santiago, 12-13, who kicked around the Kansas City organization for a few years, turned to be a big winner of the Boston staff. Jim Lonborg, 10-10, was next. Williams hopes two Toronto grads, Bill Rohr, 14-10, and Gary Waslewski, 18-11, will help and counts on Darrell Brandon, 8-8, and Lee Stange, 8-9, to take a turn.

Big John Wyatt, 3-7, and Don McMahon, 9-9, should be able to handle the short relief and Pete Magrini, 7-11 at Toronto, and possibly non-roster player Dan Osinski, 4-3, will do the long relief.

Rookie Battles Tartabull
Reggie Smith, the switch-hitting rookie flash who sparked at .320 with Toronto, has been battling popular Jose Tartabull, .261, for center field. Yastrzemski, .278, is the left fielder. A hairline fracture to the left shoulder of Tony Conigliaro, .265, the regular right fielder and top homer and RBI man, shook up the Sox camp. It was the fifth time that Tony had suffered a broken bone when hit by a pitch.

George Scott, .245, the fellow who tore the league apart last spring with those long home runs, has had to fight off the challenge of rookie Tony Horton, .297 at Toronto for first base. Scott also plays third where Joe Poy, .262, is the regular and might even take a turn in the outfield. Mike Andrews, another Toronto grad with a .267 average, apparently has won second base with George Smith out of action due to knee surgery. Rico Petrocelli, .238, is the shortstop and, hopefully, the team's leader.

Gordie Howe Still Shows Them How

(First of a Series.)

By ROGER DOUGHTY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK — (NEA) — "Gordie Howe," opined a pudgy hockey historian as he watched the dynamic Detroit right winger slap a shot straight at New York netter Ed Giacomin, "is the Babe Ruth of this game."

There's never been anybody like him. A lot of good men are going to be born, live out their lives and go to the grave before a guy as gifted as Gordie come along again.

Perhaps his equal will never be seen.

Howe is one of those rare athletes who has become a living legend. Now in his 21st year with the Red Wings, the 6-foot, 204-pound powerhouse has won everything worth winning during a brilliant career that has carried him from Saskatchewan to superstardom.

He's the only man in hockey history to have scored 700 goals over-all (regular season and playoff); a six-time MVP; a six-time point-scoring leader; a five-time goal-scoring champion. Nobody has played longer, or better. Few have come close.

And yet, despite all the crowns placed upon his rapidly receding hairline, Howe has somehow managed to retain the same quiet complexity that marked him as something special even during his amateur days as a junior standout with the Galt Red Wings.

Along with being hockey's Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Ted Williams rolled into one, Howe also has to be considered the game's Gary Cooper. The strong, silent type about whom it's said, "He may not say much, but don't push him too far." Those who have decided to push have paid a penalty sealed with scars.

"Gordie's as clean as they come," reveals one rival, "but if you belt him you can just bet you're going to get belted right back."

Fate, which has been cruel to the New York Rangers in years past, was probably cruellest of all 25 years ago when Howe, then a 14-year-old phenomenon fresh from the farm, wandered into the Ranger camp and tried out for the team.

The late Lester Patrick, boss of the Broadway Blues, gave Gordie a cursory look and sent him home. Jack Adams, former general manager of the Red Wings, took a longer look and the rest is history.

"That story is true," says Howe, "but it really isn't fair to Mr. Patrick. You have to remember that when I tried out for the Rangers, I was just a lonesome kid who wanted to go home. Anybody would have done the same thing that Mr. Patrick did."

Still the Rangers can't help but think of what might have been.

Those who know Howe best, his teammates, are highest in their praise of the ambidextrous ice artist. "I can't think of anything about Gordie that I'd change," says coach Sid Abel, "except that he's too unselfish. We'd like it if he'd shoot a little more instead of passing off so much."

Abel's assessment is affirmed by the fact that Howe has made more assists and registered more total points, in addition to having played in more games and scored more goals, than anyone in the history of the game.

"Gordie helped lengthen my career by a couple of years," quips former teammate Ted Lindsay. "You could always count on him to make you look good." Lindsay, a left winger, scored 379 goals while establishing himself as one of the best scrappers in the NHL and he had plenty of help from Howe.

"The only knock on Gordie," notes a devout Detroit follower, "is that he never has much to say about his records. Some people think he just sets 'em and forgets 'em. But that's not true. He's just the kind of guy who keeps things to himself. He's not a pop-off. He's the greatest, but he's almost embarrassed about it."

Howe has already decided to slip on his skates for the 1967-68 season and nobody knows what will happen after that. Abel has indicated that wearing two hats has become a tiresome chore (Sid is general manager as well as coach and rumor has it that Howe might someday take over the coaching duties).

But in this, a winter of deep content, Howe is doing as much backward glancing as he is looking ahead.

"Everything I am, everything I have," he says, "I owe to hockey."

Hockey, on the other hand, owes a great deal to Howe.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

By STELLA

SUNDAY, MARCH 26 — Born today, you have a deeply spiritual quality and could well decide to devote your life to some religious interest. On the other hand, you also have an extremely practical streak and could easily fit into social work, where doing good could satisfy your need for giving and real accomplishment could satisfy your need for practicality. Your only difficulty may lie in making up your mind which aspect of your nature to emphasize.

Independent in thought and deed, you are not one to be led about by the nose by other people — or to be scared off by any given project merely because there is opposition to it. Determined to succeed, even where others may have failed, you may find it difficult to achieve your goals, but you will never find trying uninteresting. You may be sure that even those who oppose you will envy you your approach.

An early marriage would probably work out very well for you. In searching for a mate, however, take care to look for those qualities that will fit in with your spiritual nature. If you can take inspiration from one you love, you can be fairly certain that is the man or woman for you.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, March 27

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20) — A poor morning which could upset you if you let it. Complications should dissolve if you are patient and let nature take its course.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21) — Keep your impulse to become involved in new activity in firm check this morning. By afternoon you should be able to let yourself go.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — A change in your environment may work a hardship on you for a while. Patience and good sense should see you your old self again.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — A slow morning need not set you up for a slow afternoon. Afternoon hours promise to be active and progressive.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — An incautious step could jeopardize your financial position. See that you take everything in order, one move at a time.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — Make certain that you are right in your initial premise and this could be a day of great gain for you. Double check.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — Work up to your full speed slowly today. These are times when time spent in rechecking your work is time saved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Best not to move too quickly on the employment scene. There may be circumstances about which you have yet to hear.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Make progress in business or profession during the later morning hours; otherwise, take it easy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) — Increased activity as the day wears on should make up for a sluggish morning. Don't allow others to interfere with progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — Plans for the morning could be easily upset by minor mishaps — if you let them. Make sure you place the right value on things.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21) — Capitalize on an opportunity this morning brings. Progress both on the employment scene and on the home front if you work it right.

The sow was killed. Cormier's heavily damaged car was towed from the scene.

LOCAL CORPORATION IS GIVEN CHARTER

Thorobill, Incorporated, a Delaware corporation based locally at 1330 West State street, has been chartered with Secretary of State Paul Powell.

J. David Byus of 1330 West State street is listed as the registered agent, and also the president. Fred L. Tendick of Murrayville is listed as secretary.

Name Bob Merris Of Yonkers, New York Paper

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Robert Merris, editor of the Decatur Herald and Decatur Review, has resigned to accept a job with the Yonkers N.Y. Herald-Statesman, it was announced Friday.

Merris, 33, will become managing editor of the Herald-Statesman effective April 28. He has been with the Decatur newspapers 11 years.

A native of Bluffs, Ill., he was graduated from Illinois college in Jacksonville. He began his newspaper career with Paul Vannier on the Bluffs Times as a "printer's devil."

During his years at Illinois college, he worked for the Jacksonville Journal Courier as sports editor.

He then went to the Decatur newspapers as a sportswriter, and became managing editor of both. He was executive editor for two years before his appointment as editor in January.

Two Teens Hurt West Of City

Two Jacksonville teenage girls were hospitalized with injuries sustained in a one-car accident Friday afternoon west of the city on the Mount Road.

A Passavant hospital spokesman identified the two as Patty Reynolds, 17, of 1839 Cedar street, driver, and a passenger Karen Schneider, 16, of route one.

Both sustained lacerations, and were treated and admitted. They were described in good condition Friday.

A third passenger in the car, Beverly Glossop, 16, of 2010 Mount Road, was treated for minor injuries and later released.

State police said that the 1962 model car, which was east-bound, went out of control, and careened off the south side of the pavement.

The vehicle traveled over 100 feet on the shoulder of the road before striking a concrete culvert. The Reynolds girl and Miss Schneider were taken to the hospital by ambulance, while the Glossop girl was taken to Passavant by a motorist.

The incident occurred about 1:30 p.m. one-half mile west of the city limits.

Half-Mast Flags To Honor Soldier

Mayor Byron Holkenbrink has directed that all flags in Jacksonville be flown at half mast from sunrise to sunset from March 25-27 in respect to the memory of 2nd Lieut. Charles William Sanders of Jacksonville.

Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Sanders, 340 Webster, was killed in Vietnam March 18.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday in Jacksonville for Sanders.

Flags flown at half-mast should be raised to the top of the staff, and then put in the half-mast position. The flag, when being lowered, should be raised to the top of the staff and then moved downward.

Sheppard Rites Held At Woodson

Funeral services for Mrs. Zella Sheppard, wife of Hardin Sheppard of Woodson, were conducted at 2 p.m. Friday from the Woodson Christian church, Reverend John Watson officiating. Mrs. Virginia Hargett was the organist.

Serving as pallbearers were Marvin Wildhagen, Harold Sooy, Frank McCurley, Russell Lee Mason, John Hawks and Dale White.

Members of the Woodson American Legion Auxiliary attended the service in a group.

Burial was in Asbury cemetery.

TRUCK FIRE IN GREENE

A van-type truck from Quincy, loaded with hardware bound for Hillview, was heavily damaged by fire Friday afternoon on the White Hall-Hillview blacktop.

White Hall volunteer firemen said that the truck caught fire three miles west of White Hall. Firemen said that the fire apparently started in the engine of the vehicle.

No estimate of damage, nor the driver's name, was available. The accident occurred shortly after one o'clock in the afternoon.

MAKE GRASS FIRE RUN

City firemen were called at 718 West Douglas about 1:10 p.m. Friday where they extinguished a grass fire, burning behind the residence of Mrs. Alice Culley. No damage was reported.
